late years collecting War Medals has become a very popular hobby in this country, and seems likely to rival in popularily the formation of collections of coins. No doubt one reason for this is the very line appearance, presented by the medals when deeked with their proper ribbons, and also the fact that almost every medal recalls some act of gullantry performed during the campaign for which it was issued. Hitherto the standard work on the subject has been Gibsons "British Military and Naval Medals," an excellent work, and one which contains much valuable information. It only, how ever, touches on medals down to 1877 since when many additions to our campaign metals have been made. Previous to this work. Carter's 'Medals of the British Army' was the chief book on the subject, but it only treated on medals down to the Clina War, in 1860, and is more of a military history than a collector's rade mecum. Since Mr Gibson's book no comprehensic work has appeared on this subject.

of growing popularity, and the Author trusts that to those interested in the pursuit the present book will be of interest. Being written by one who has been for many years a collector of medals the aim in view has been to embody, as far as possible, the information chiefly sought after by collectors—in fact, to make it essentially a book for collectors, by a collector. A special finiture has been made of the lists of the combinations of bars of the various cam-

lists of the combinations of bars of the various campaign medals, and it is hoped that what the book lacks from a literary point will be compensated for by its usefulness as a collector's manual. The older medals become scarcer year by year, and so the difficulty of obtaining a perfect collection becomes greater. Another unfortunate fact is, that before interest in this subject was aroused many valuable and unique medals had found their way to the melting pot, a loss which, from a numismatical

point, it is impossible to over estimate

As instances of what collections can be made by Perseverance and care, may be mentioned those of Colonel the Hon H F Eaton, Colonel Murray, and Captain Whitaker, all of them containing some specimens which may be safely described as unique. The Author wishes to express his indebtedness to Colonel the Hon H F Eaton, Colonel Murray,

Lieut Colonel Whalley, Captain Greg, Captain Tancred, Captin Whitaker, R. Day Jun, Esq, and J. Harris Gibson, Esq, for many hints and much valuable in-formation, without which this compilation would have been very much more difficult

PREFACE

TO THE SECOND EDITION.

EARLY eight years have clapsed since I brought out the First Edition of this book, and the favour with which it met from collectors, coupled with the fact that since then many new medals have been issued, and others have been brought to light, has prompted me to issue a Second Edition, much enlarged and brought up to date.

That there is a growing interest in this most engrossing subject is proved by the rapidly-increasing number of collectors, and also by the fact that within the last two years a monthly, and also a quarterly, magazine have been brought out specially treating of medal-collecting.

I have endeavoured to make the descriptions as concise as possible, and for the sake of brevity have avoided all anecdotal matter.

My thanks are due to Colonel Gaskell, Colonel Murray, Major Drake, and many other friends for descriptions of rare medals in their collections, and for much valuable information; and I trust that my labours will prove useful to my brother-collectors.

British War Medals and Decorations.

HE study of war medals as granted to the naval and military forces of this country is one of singular interest to anyone who admires the many noble deeds of our soldiers and sailors; and a complete collection forms a concise historical record of the growth and advance of the British Empire.

The prevailing custom of bestowing "campaign" medals as rewards for military services may be said to date from the early part of the present century, although many medals are still in existence dating from the time of Queen Elizabeth and James I. It is, however, doubtful whether they were intended to be worn as decorations in the way our modern medals are; and, in any case, we have no reason to believe that the issue of them was general. They were, most probably, only given in individual cases, or to distinguished officers, and not generally to the rank and file Judging by the size and shape of the earlier medals, one can hardly come to any other conclusion than that they were simply commemorative, and were not intended to be worn as decorations. They were chiefly of gold, and were, most probably intended for officers in command, or others of high rank The medals issued specially for the Battle of Dunbar (1650) are the first of which there is any reliable record of their having been distributed in the army to officers and men alike, but they cannot be considered as "campaign" medals in the modern acceptation of the term Thence we hear of none until the Waterloo Medal was issued, in 1817 The Deccan and Mysore Medils are, however, exceptions, but as they were issued (in 1784 and 1791-2 respectively) by the Indian Government to the Honourable East India Company's troops, and natives, the previous remarks only apply to the medals issued by our own Government to British troops

In former times medals were issued with a very sparing liand, in great contrast to the lavish distributions of the present day. The medals for the Peninsular War were only authorised in 1848, thus, only the surviving veterans received them, and many men passed through all the dangers of an arduous campaign, and died, without receiving even a medal for their services.

It is recorded that when Napoleon I surrendered himself on bourd the "Bellerophon," he was received by a captain's detachment of Royal Marines After acknowledging the salute, he minutely inspected the men, and having remarked that they were very fine, and well appointed, the ex Emperor added "Are there none amongst them who have seen service?"

Upon being told that nearly the whole of them had seen much service he exclaimed 'What' and no marks of ment?" The officer in command explained that it was not customary to confer medals except upon officers of the highest rank, to which the ex Emperor replied 'Such is not the way to excite or cherish the military writtes'

Long before medals were issued by the Government the officers of many regiments conferred medals, at their own expense, on their men for long service, ment, brivery, good conduct, &c. These will be treated under the head of 'Regimental Medals. The intention is to give descriptions of all the medals which are known at present to the Author, either in public or private collections. They will be accurately copied from the actual medals and will be made as clear as possible. They will also be taken as far as possible, chronologically, and so the armous campaigns will be traced from the earliest down to the present time.

The first medal which comes within the range of this work is a naval award given in the reign of the Work is a naval award given in the reign of the Medal. Although a navy existed in this country from a very early period, and long before a standing army was thought of, the custom of granting rewards by medals only dates two reigns prior to that in which they were given to the army. As a rule, the earlier medals were worn suspended from the neck by a chain, and Sir H. Nicholas in his 'History of Medals mentions that they were frequently worn in the hat. This may possibly account for the fact that in very few portraits of ancient warriors found amongst various collections.

of pictures throughout the country are medals represented worn as decorations

It is uncertain for what particular service this medal given by Queen Elizabeth was granted Some authorities say that it was for services against the Spanish Armada, whilst others aver that it was given generally to distinguished naval commanders, and was merely an honorary badge. As, however, it has a ring for suspension, it was evidently intended to be worn by the recipient intended to be worn by the recipient

The medal was struck in gold and silver, and is a large oval piece (2in by 1½m) Upon the obverse is a portrait of the Queen, with the legend, Elizabeth
D. G. Anglie F. et Hib Reg., around the head Reverse. An ark upon the flood, surrounded by Per windas sevas tranquilla.

Two other medals were given by Queen Elizabeth, which are mentioned by Mr Grueber as having been issued to commemorate the defeat of the Spanish Armada. The obverse has a bust of the Queen, in very high relief, facing and crowned, holding the orb and sceptre It is surrounded by the motto, Ditior in toto non alter circulus orbe Reverse A bay tree on an island with houses, uninjured by lightning, inscribed, Non ipsa pericula tangunt, with an ornamental border. It is a large, silver oval medal, cast and chased (2 3m by 2 m), and the Author had a fine specimen of it in his collection. The other has a three quarter bust of the Queen on the obverse, but without sceptre or orb, and on the reverse the letters ER. are on the field, and no buildings are shewn on the island This medal is smaller than the other (21n by 16in), and both have loops for suspension

A medal very similar to that first mentioned was struck by King James I, and is almost certainly jam for the same class of services It is ovil in form (1911 by 1611), and was struck in gold, silver and bronze Obverse Head of the King, legend Jacobus D G Mag Brita Fr et H: Rex Reverse The ark, legend Stet salvus in Vndis All of these medals are very rare, and are extremely fine specimens of the earlier medallic art

Owing to the internal troubles of the country during the following reign of Charles I, the navy, chairs far as numismatical lore is concerned, seems to have sunk out of sight. At least no trace of naval awards of that period can be found. The army, however, was very actively employed, both during this reign and the following period of the Commonwealth, and several interesting medals belong to this period.

For distinguished service at the Battle of Edgehill (Sundry, October 23rd, 1642) a gold medal was well awarded to Sir Robert Welch, Knt He was an interpretable of the Royalist cavalry commanded by Prince Rupert. Towards the close of the battle he recovered the Royal Standard, which had been captured by the Parliamentary forces. On the following morning Mr Welch was presented to the king by the Prince, who thereupon knin-field him as a mark of appreciation of his gallant conduct Subsequently, a royal warrant was issued, as follows.

Charles Pex.

Our will and pleasure is that you make a medal in gold for our trusty and well beloved Sir Robert Welch, knight, with our own figure and that of our devrest some I mine Charles, and on the reverse thereof to insculp je form of our Royal Banner used at the battail of Edge Hill, where he did us acceptable service, and received the dignity of knighthood from us, and to inscribe about it Per Regale manditum Cwoli Pegis Hoc assignatur Roberto Welch, Mishts, and for so doing this shall be your sufficient warrant.

Given at our court at Oxford this first day of June 1643 To our trusty and well beloved Thomas Rawlins our graver of scals and medals

The medal is oval in for n (17in by 15in) as most of the earlier ones were and on the obverse are the busts of the King and Prince Charles with the inscription Carolus Rex Magnae Britanniae Franciae et Hiberniae Carolus Princeps On the reverse is the royal standard, with the legend as set forth in the royal warrant

King Charles I authorised a badge for such soldiers Forlorn as night distinguish themselves in forlorn hones Modals It was an oval silver medal (1510 by 1210), having on the obverse the bust of King Charles, surrounded by Carolus D G Mag Bri Fr et Hib Rex Reverse The royal arms, surmounted by a crown. and encircled by a garter, on which is the motto Honis oit qui mal y pense

A silver medal was also issued, having on the obverse the bust of King Charles 1, and on reverse the bust of Prince Charles It was granted on May 18th, 1643, for bestowal on soldiers for military service (Oval 1710 by 1310)

The next medal is the first of which any authentic Cromwell record exists that it was issued generally to officers Dunbar and men alike A few days after the news of the heeds of the 1000 victory at Dunbar (September 3rd, 1650) reached London the House of Commons voted that medals should be presented to all the troops of the Parliamentary forces who were engaged. The work was placed in the hands of Simon, the celebrated engraver.

On the obverse is the head of Cromwell, in armour, and in the background a charge of his invincible Ironsides is represented. Cromwell's characteristic modesty forbade his effigy appearing on the medal; hut this was overruled. Above the head appears: The word at Dunhar, the Lord of Hosts, September ye 3rd, 1650. On the reverse is a representation of the House of Commons assembled. That House "ordered that it be referred to the Committee of the Army to consider what medals may be prepared for officers and soldiers that were in this service in Scotland, and set the proportions and the values of them, and their number, and present the estimate of them to the House." It was voted that the officers and men "which did this excellent service" should be presented with gold and silver medals. Simon, the engraver, whose name appears under the bust of Cromwell on the obverse of the medal, was sent to consult with him as to the device for this medal, and the following letter (the original was in the possession of James Lamb, Esq., of Fairford, Gloucestershire, and subsequently of John Raymond Barker, Esq., of the same place) was sent by Cromwell to the Parliament:

For ye Honble, the Committee for the Army, these,

GFNTL,—It was not a lutle wonder to me to see that you should send Mr Symonds so great a journey about a husiness importinge so little as far as it relates to me, when, as if my poore opinion may not be rejected by you, I have to offer to that wel. I thinke the most noble end, to wit, the commemoracion of that great mercie at Dunbar, and the gratuite to the Army, wich might hetter be expressed upon the meddal by engraving as on one side the Parlament, with I heare was intended, and as on one side the Parliament, with I heare was intended, and will do singularly well, so on the other side, an army with this inscription over the head of it, The Lord of Hosts, with was or word that day. Wherefore if I may begg it as a favor from you, I most earnestly beseeth you, if I may do it with out offence, that it may be soe; and if you think not fit to have it as I offer, you may alter it as you see cause, only I doe thinke I may truely say it will be verie thankfully acknowledged by me if you will spare having my effigies in it

The gentleman's paynes and trouble hither have been veriegrent, and I shall make it my seconde suite unto you that you will please to conferr upon him that imploymt in yr service well Nicholas Briott had before him, indeed, the man is ingenious and worthie of encouragement. I may not presume much, but if at my request and for my sake he may obteyne this favor, I shall put it upon the accompt of my obligacons, with are not a few, and I hope shall be found readic gratefully to acknowledge and to approve myself, Gentl, for most reall servant.

Edinburgh, 4th of Feb. 1650-1

The officers received small medals, in gold (iin by 85m), the men larger ones, in silver (1 35m by 1 151n) The medal was worn by a chain suspended from the neck

A smaller medal was also struck, having a plain reverse, and bronze specimens of both medals are met with

Many medals were likewise awarded during the Civil War to the commanders of the Royalist and Parliamentary forces, but they appear to have been worn more as party badges of the different commanders than as rewards for military services

Mr. Grueber in his Catalogue of the English Medals mentary in the British Museum, mentions the following badges as having been given for military services about this perred

The navy again comes to the fore during the Pro-Memist tectorate, indeed, this may be looked upon as one of the finest periods of our naval supremacy. On July 31st, 1650, one small English ship was surrounded and attacked by six Dutch frigates. The fight was maintained until the following afternoon, when the Figlish commander succeeded in beating off his opponents, and proceeded to Yarmouth Parliament at once voted a gold medal to be struck, and presented to the commander, Captain Wyard It is oval in form (1 bin by 1 35in), and on one side are an anchor and cable, with two shields suspended from the stock, one of which bears St George's cross, and the other the Insh harp Above is the legend, Meruisti Upon the reverse is a representation of the fight, with the following inscription Service done against six ships, July ye xxxi and August 3e 1, 1650 It was also given in silver to the other officers

George I's reign is also unmarked by any similar of records, but in George II's reign we come across the of medil given for the Battle of Culloden, which was or fought on April 16th, 1746. The adherents of the ¹⁷Young Pretender were utterly routed in this engagement. A medal was struck in gold, silver, and bronze, oval (1751n by 1451n), with an ornamental border, having on the obverse a bust of the Duke of Cumberland to the right, with the word Cumberland above, while on the reverse is a figure of Apollo, with a dragon transfixed by an arrow at his feet Above, the legend Actumest vilicet perut, and in the exergue Prail Colod Ap xvi MDCCXLII A loop is attached to the medal, through which a crimson ribbon with green border was worn

There is a fine specimen of this medal, in gold in the splendid collection of Colonel the Hon H F Enton, Grenadier Guards It was given to Brighter-General Fleming who commanded the 36th Regiment at the Bittle of Culloden. Very few specimens are known to exist, and they were probably only given in gold to officers commanding regiments.

There is, in the British Museum, a bronze medal for Culloden, which, as it has a pierced, ornamented loop for suspension, was evidently intended to be worn.

On the obverse is the Duke of Cumberland on horseback, a battle in the background Above is the legend Gul Aug Dux Cum Terror Reb , and in the exergue, 1746 The reverse is quite plain This medal is circular in shape

In June, 1742 Captain Callis in the fire ship "Duke," Cal s entered the French port of St Tropez and burnt five edal Spanish galleys that were anchored there For this action Captain Callis was promoted, and a gold medal and chain were presented to him by the King On the obverse, George II is represented as a Roman general, with a medal and chain in his right hand, and a baton in his left, kneeling before him is Captain Callis, with the words Pro talibus Ausis below On the reverse is a representation of his exploit and in the exergue the legend Ob v Trirem Hispan a s Callis combust v Julu MDCCXLII (2 110 diameter)

An Order of Council, dated December 16th, 1742, granted to Lieutenant Green of the same vessel an award of £50, and a reward was established for heutenants for similar actions in future

For the taking of Louisbourg in Canada in 1758 Louisbourg (July 27th), a medal (1 7in) was struck and presented in gold and silver to a few of the officers who distinguished themselves On the obverse is a globe inscribed, Canada and below, America, resting on a figure of France, who drops a fleur de lys On either side of the globe, as supporters, are a grenadier and a sailor, above, a flying figure of Victory, and behind the Union Jack, a scroll inscribed, Pariter in bella Reverse The bombardment of Louisbourg, above, Louisbourg taken MDCCLVIII The Author had in his collection a well worn silver medal, pierced for suspender

One of the rarest of the medals given by the Honble. East Iudia Company is that recommended by Lord Clive 6 to be distributed amongst the native officers of two Mative battalions, who succeeded in quelling a muliny 2 amongst the European troops at Monghyr in June, 1766. It is a small, round, silver medal, struck in a concave die. On the obverse is a figure of Minerva, seated and holding a spear, and leaning upon a shield on which is the head of Medusa; at her feet an owl, in the background three palm-trees. Reverse: Non nist digno. MIDCCLXVI, surrounded by a laurel-wreath. (12 in. diameter.)

Only two of these medals are known in collections, one being in Colonel Murray's cabinet, and the other was in the Author's. A ring for suspension is added to the medal.

On May 1st, 1798, the Emperor Francis II of Germany presented a gold medal and chain to eight versions of the 15th Light Dragoons, for distinguished reconduct at the Battle of Villiers-en-Crouché, near Cambray, on April 24th, 1794. By the gallant conduct of the 15th the Emperor was saved being taken prisoner by the French. There were only two squadrons of the 15th engaged, and they, in conjunction with a small body of German cavalry, drove back a body of about 10,000 French soldiers, inflicting a loss of 1200 killed and wounded, and capturing three guns

The following letter from the Adjutant-General of the Forces to Lord Dorchester, Colonel of the 15th Light Dragoons, dated May 1st, 1798, gives the King's permission to the officers to wear the distinction conferred upon them:

My Lord,—The Emperor of Germany having been pleased to present each of the officers of the 15th Rgt., under your Lordship's command, who distinguished themselves in sogallant a manner by their spirited attack upon the enemy, with a very inferior force, on the 24th April, 1794, near Cambray, a Gold Medal his been struck by his Imperial Majestys orders, on the occasion, as i printicular mark of the sense he entertained of the signal service thereby rendered to the Allied army. I have, therefore, the honour, by order of his Royal Highness the Commander in Chief, to signify to your Lordship his Majesty's pleasure that the above mentioned officers shall be permitted to wear the said medals constitutly with their uniforms is an honority budge of their braiery in the field of riction and an inducement to all others to imitate, on every favourable occasion, their glorous example.

I have, etc.

WM FAWCETT, Adjut int General

The officers of the regiment who received the medal were Major William Aylett, Captains Edward Pocklington and Edward Ryan, Lieutenants Thos Calcraft, William Keir, and Thos Blount, Cornets Edward Butler and Robert Wilson

The text of the letter which accompanied the medals was as follows

Vienna, March 5, 1798

Sig.—The Emperor remembers with satisfaction the distinguished proofs of valour that you, Sig., and seven other officers of the 15th Light Diragoons, manifested on the 24th April 1794 near Cambray. His Majesty regrest shat the statutes of the Order of Mana Theresa, confirmed by constant custom do not allow the Cross of the Order, structly automal, to be conferred on officers so worthy of being decorated with it, but wishing, at the same time, to give you and your honourable companions in arms a public mark of his particular esteem, his Majesty has ordered a medal to be struck to perpetuate the remem brance of this brilliant action, and has commanded me to offer you, in his name, the only impressions which have been struck, except that which is placed in the Imperial cabinet at Vienna

In fulfilling the intention of his Imperial Majesty, I beg you to accept for yourself, but and to distribute to the other officers who, in the important affair of the 24th April, 1794, fought under your commond, these medals, which for that yourses? I wrow delivered to Captain Ryan I have the honour to add the assurances of the consideration with which I have the honour to be, Sir, &c.

LE BARON THUGUT.

This display of heroism made a lasting impression on the mind of the Emperor, for, later on, the following letter was received by Lieutenant-Colonel Aylett from Lord Minto, British Envoy at Vienna

Vienna, November 7th, 1800

SIL,-I have received from his Excellency, Baron Thugut, eight crosses of the Order of Mana Theresa, which the Emperor has been pleased to confer on jourself and seven other officers of the 13th Light Drigoons, who distinguished themselves in a most gallant retion near Villiers en Crouche, on the 24th April, 1794. His Internal Majesty had already testified the high sense he entertuned of the brilliant and important service which the Regiment performed on that occision, by presenting the officers engaged with a medil struck for the purpose of commemorating that brilliant action, and afforcing to those who achieved it a lasting testimony of and anorong to those who achieves it a lasting testimony or his approbation and gratitude. It was deemed worthy at the time of the Cross of Maria Theresa, but it that period a doubt evisted whether this Order could be conferred on foreigners, that this difficulty being now removed, It is Imperial Majesty avails himself with pleasure of the occasion to evince his high esteem for the Regiment, as well as his regard for his high esteem for the Regiment, as well as his regard for the individuals, by investing with this order of ment gentlemen who have proved themselves so worthy to wear it. In transmiting to you these crosses, to be distributed to the officers for whom they are destined, I cannot omit the opportunity of expressing the satisfaction I have experienced from the share which my situation here has afforded me in a transaction which, while it does bonour to the liberality of this Imperial Majesty, and throws so much fusite on the corps and on those who are immediately concerned, reflects, at the same time, credit on the country to which they belong.

I have, etc.,

The King (George III) gave the eight officers permission to accept the rank of Knight of the Imperial Order of Maria Theresa, and to wear the insignia of the Order, and the Regiment was authorised to bear the words Villiers en-Crouche on its guidons

The medal weighs 4 350 oz, with a gold chain of the same weight for suspending it from the neck. On the obverse is a laureated head of the Emperor Francis II of Germany, to the right Above is the legend Imp Caes Franciscus II P F AVG, and on the reverse Forti Britanno in exerciti Freed ad Cameracum xviv Apr MDCC\CIV Two laurel branches in the exergue (2\frac{2}{3}\text{in diameter})

The Order of Maria Theresa is a Maltese cross of sold and white ename! On the centre of the Maria Abertse obverse are the Austrian colours—red and white—and Reverse A green enamelled circle and monogram, M T I (Maria-Theresa Prancis) The Order is worn with a crimson ribbon with white centre

The medal chain, and Order of Cornet Butler are now in Colonel the Hon H F Enton's collection of medals, and were bought at the Greg sale in 1887.

During the reign of George III the nation was almost incessantly at war, the intervals of pence being very few. The naval forces were, consequently, brought to a state of efficiency never before attained not withstanding it is a strange fact, that during the first thirty years of this reign no medals were granted for mival services

The first medal struck during this reign was for Lord Howe's decisive victory over the French of Ushint, generally known as The glorious first of June (1794) The French under Vice-Admiral
Joyeuse, were totally deferted, with a loss of seven

Nava ships It was decided to institute a Naval Medal and bestow it upon the admirals and captains as wellself as upon those who might distinguish themselves in the future. The King was anxious to visit the flect on the earliest opportunity, but, as the medals were not ready for distribution, he presented massive gold chains to the officers for whom they were intended and, when ready, the medals were subsequently given The flag-officers did not receive chains, but wore their medals with a white ribbon with dark blue edges, 13in, wide, edges, 14th, which are all engraved. The medals have on the obverse a figure of Victory standing upon the prow of an ancient galley, placing a wreath of laurel on Britannia, who were a helmet and stands on the galley, at her side a round shield, charged with the crosses of the Union banner, her right foot resting upon a helmet and her left hand holding a spear. On the reverse is a wreath of oak and laurel, surrounding the name and rank of the recipient, the event for which the medal was given, and the date, which are all engraved. They were 21 in diameter.

Admiral Lord Howe's medal was inscribed Richard Farl Houe, admiral and commander-in-chief on the 1 of June, 1794 The French fleet defeated

The medal given to the captions was I in, diameter, but exactly the same in design, with the exception of the wreath, which is omitted Instead in the same of being worn from the neck, the medal was worn by a white and blue ribbon (1/1 m wide) between the third and fourth buttonholes of the uniform coats All the medals were fixed in gold frames, and were glized on both sides to protect them

The medils were all gold. They were sent to the respective officers on November 9th, 1796, accompanied by the following letter.

Sit.—The king having been pleased to order a certain number of gold medals to be struck in commentation of the victory obtained by His Majest's Fleet, under the command of Lail Hose, oner that of the errors, in the actions of the 27th Maj and ist of June, 27th, I am commanded by His Majest's to preser to you one of the recalls above rentioned, and signify His Majesty's pleasure that you should were it when in your un form.

in the manner described by the direction, which (together with the medal and ribband belonging to it) I have the honour to transmit to you I am also commanded by His Majesty to acquaint you that had it been possible for all the officers, on whom His Majesty is pleased to confer this mark of approval, to attend personally in London, His Majesty would have been pleased to have presented the medal to each of them in person; but that being, from various causes, at this time impossible, His Majesty, in order to obviate all further delay, has therefore been pleased to duect them to be forwarded in this manner.

Allow me to express the great satisfaction I feel in being made the channel of communicating to you so distinguished a mark of His Majesty's approbation

I have the honour to be, &c, SPENCER.

The following is a list of the actions for which this medal was subsequently given;

Battle of Ushant, June 1st, 1794; six large, fifteen small medals.

Battle of St Vincent, February 14th, 1797; six large, fifteen small medals.

Battle of Camperdown, October 11th, 1797; two large, fourteen small medals.

Battle of the Nile, August 1st, 1798; one large, thirteen small medals

To Captain Hamilton, of "The Surprise," for the re-capture of the "Hermione" frigate, October 25th, 1799; one small medal. Battle of Trafalgar, October 21st, 1805; two large, twenty-

To Sir Michael Seymour, of the "Amethyst," for the capture of the "Thetis," November 10th, 1808; one small medal.

To Captain Steward, of the "Seahorse," for the capture of Badere Zaffere, July 6th, 1808; one small medal.

To Captum Mousey, of the "Bonne Cloyenne," for the capture of the "Funcuse," July 6th, 1809; one small medal Action off Lissa, March 3th, 1811; four small medals.
To Captum Cole, of the "Caroline," for the capture of the Island of Banda Neira, August 9th, 1810; one small medal To Captain Talbot, of the "Victorious," for the capture of "Le Rivoli," February 22nd, 1812; one small medal,

To Captain Broke, of the 'Shannon, for the capture of the "Chesapeake, June, 1st, 1815, one small medal To Captain Palmer, of the "Hebrus for the capture of the "L'Etoile, March 27th 1814, one small med il. To Captain Hope, of the "Endymon" for the capture of the "President, January 13th, 1815, one small medal.

In all there were eight large medals and chains given, thirteen large medals without chains, and 110 small medals. They were never given to an officer below the rank of post captain, with two exceptions, namely, Lieut Pinfold, "Ajax" and Lieut Stockham, "Thunderer," who received the medals at Trafalgar, where they were acting captuins, in the absence of their superior officers

In Captain Whitaker's collection there are two of these medals, both in glass cases with gold rims

Fleets of France and Spain defeated

On the conclusion of the war with France in 1815 it was decided to discontinue the issue of these gold medals, and in future to substitute the Order of the Bath

The officers who took part in the action of June 1st, 1794, were presented with a special gold bidge It was oval in form (13in by 18in), and on the perforated centre was an anchor and twisted cable (" foul anchor") Engraved on the obverse Larl Howe, First of June, and on the reverse the name of the recipient Captum Whitaker has the one presented to Rear-Admiral Bowyer in his collection

It is not certain by whom these decorations were given. They were issued to the commander in chief, admirals, and captures of slaps. They are of various designs some being circular, and have different inscriptions. That of Earl Howe which was shown with his other decorations at the Naval Exhibition in 1891, was engraved on the outside border Rule Britannia.

They all however carry the foul nuchor in the centre. They were probably worn on the anniversity of the bittle, and on festive occisions held to commemorate the victory. Admirul Bowyer lost his leg in this action, and for his services was created a bitten and granted a pension of f,1 000 per annum in the Authors collection there was a gold undor, enamelled blue and white on the obserse, with gold cable. The reverse is plant gold and on the cross-

beam is engraved, Earl Hove, 1st June, 1794

In the year 1793 the 12th Lancers were present at the attack upon the Island of Corsica Part of the co 12th landed and took part in the capture of Bestia, 1793 the remainder of the regiment proceeded to Italy, and were stationed at Civita Vecchia. As a mark of ap-preciation, Pope Pius VI presented twelve officers of the 12th Light Dragoons (as they were then called) with a gold medal, accompanied by the following letter

Vatican, May 30th, 1794

The marked consideration which the Holy Father has always entertuined, and never will cease to entertain for the generous and illustrous English Nation, induces him not to neglect the opportunity of gung a proof of it, which is now afforded by the stry of a littish Regiment at Civila Vecchit.

As His Holiness cannot but appland the regular and praise worthy conduct of the Troops in question he has determined to evince his entire satisfaction by presenting a gold medal to each of the Officers, including General Sir James Stewart, Bart, Colonel Erskine, though absent; and since these medals, twelve in number, are not at the present moment in readiness, nor can be provided before the departure of the Regiment from Civita Vecchia, the Holy Father will be careful that they shall be sent, as soon as possible, to Sir John Cox Hippstey, who will be pleased to transmit them to the respective Officers, making them acquanted at the same time with the feelings by which his Holiness is animated, and with the lively desire which he entertains of manifesting on all occasions his unalterable regard, whether it be towards the Nation in general, or towards every lidukidual Englishman

In thus making known to Sir John Cox Hippisley, Member of the British Parliament, the dispositions of the Supreme Pontifi, the Cardinal de Zelada, Secretary of State, begs leave to add an offer of his own services, and the assurance of his distinguished esteem.

On the obverse of the medal is a bust of the Pope to the right; legend: Pius Sextus Pont. Max. a. XVII. On the reverse, a figure of Ceres seated, with a cornucopia, and the sources of three rivers below; above is the legend, Agro Pomptin Colonis Rest; and in the exergue is the date, MDCCCXCI. (t\frac{1}{2}\text{in diameter.}) This medal seems originally to have been struck to commemorate the Pope's restoration of the harbour of Civita Vecchia, and not specially as a reward to the officers of the 12th Light Dragogous.

For the war against the Caribs, in the West Carib War, Indian Island of St. Vincent, in 1773, a silver medal was issued, which was worn with a red ribbon. Upon one side is an effigy of King George III., in armour, with the legend, Georgius III., M.B. Rex., and upon the other Britanuia is standing, offering an olivebranch to the conquered Carib; above, Peace and Prosperity to St. Vincent's. The date, 1773, is below, in Roman characters.

The Author has seen one of these medals struck in pewter, with a copper rim, but has been unable to trace to whom it was given. The silver medals were east and chased. (2:2in. diameter.)

For the subsequent war in 1795, in the same island, against the French and Caribs, a bronze medal was far presented to the troops. The obverse bears a figure of Victory, holding a palm-branch and sword, and stunding over a defeated Carib; above is the legend, St. Vincent's Black Corps. On the reverse, a black soldier holding a musket; above, Bold, Loyal, Obedient. This medal was only presented to native troops, and, like the foregoing, was only a cast medal. (15th. diameter.)

In 1784, the troops of the Honourable East India Company received a silver medal for good services beduring the war against Hyder Ali. It is commonly known as the "Deccan Medal." On the obverse Britannia is represented seated, and holding a wreath towards a distant fortress. The reverse has a long Persian inscription, which says: Presented by the Calcutta Government in memory of good service and intrepid valour, A.D. 1784; Mahomedan era 1190. Also the Persian legend Like the coin, may it endure long in the world, and the exertions of those lion-hearted Englishmen of great name, victorious from Hindostan to the Deccan, become exalted The medals were struck in two sizes (11in. and 170in diameter), the larger of which was only awarded to officers. A few were struck in gold, and given to subadars and higher officials; the smaller medils were given to non-commissioned officers and sepoys only. This medal, being milled on the edge, may easily be mistaken for a coin.

The Indian Government distributed a silver medal

Appeare to the Honourable List India Company's troops for services in the war against Tippio Sahib in 1791 2 It was struck in two sizes, like the previous medal the larger size (17in diameter) was for the officers, and the other (14m diameter) was given to the non commissioned officers and soldiers Gold medals were given to subadars About 7000 medals were issued Compared with many of the later medals it seems rough in design and workmanship. On the obverse, a sepoy in uniform holds in his right hand a Union Jack, and in his left the flag of My sore, which is inverted, signifying defeat. His left foot rests on a broken cannon. In the back-ground is seen the fortress of Seringapatam Reverse For Services in Mysore, AD 1791-1792. surrounded by a laurel wreath Around the outside is a Persian inscription, signifying the same, and also stating that the medal was given by the English Government the number of cannon balls on the obverse varies, showing that more than one die existed

Both the above medals were worn suspended from a yellow silk cord, as were also the gold medals given to subadars

By an Order in Council by the Viceroy, at Fort Corion William, May 15th, 1807, a silver medal (211 1796 diameter) was granted to troops for services in Ceylon The obverse bears the legend For services on the Island of Ceylon, AD 1795 1796, and the reverse states, in Persian, that This medal was given by way of achieveledyment for services in Ceylon, in the year of the Hegira 1209 1210 Like the two previous medals, it was worn suspended from the neck by a yellow silk cord

Two gold and 121 silver medals were struck, and issued to the natives of the Bengal Artillery only The Directors of the Honourable East India Company were usually presented with specimens of each medal issued, in gold, but an exception seems to have been made in this case

After the Battle of the Nile (August 1st, 1798) Mr Davison, Lord Nelson's Prize Agent, determined Th to issue a medal to every officer and man present at the battle. He ordered medals to be struck at a cost of nearly £2000 Admirals and captains received the medal in gold, heutenants and warrant officers in silver, petty officers in bronze gilt, and seamen and marines in bronze. This is the first instance of medals given by a private individual being accepted and worn by the Services They were issued without names, but many of the recipients had their names and those of their ships engraved, generally in the field The medals were worn in a variety of ways, but were generally suspended from the neck by a blue ribbon They are often met with, carefully glazed and mounted in gold or silver frames They were very highly prized by the recipients

The following ships took part in the battle

By a General Order dated Madras, July 18th, 1808, Set nga a medal was granted to the troops engaged in the Patam ryng storming and capture of Seringapatam The siege lasted from April 4th to May 4th, 1799 on which latter day it was decided to carry the town by storm The British were commanded by General Lord Harris, and Tippoo Sahib, who commanded the enemy, was killed towards the close of the action. The town was captured at noon on May 4th, and the fact is shown on the medal by the sun in full splendour The medal was given in gold to the general officers, silver gilt to field officers, silver to captains and subalterns, bronze to non-commissioned officers and men of the British Army, and tin to the sepoys engaged Permission to wear the medal was given to our army by the Prince Regent on August 29th, 1815. The medal was issued without names or suspenders, these were generally added by the recipients, who wore the medal suspended from a dark orange ribbon, supposed to represent the colour of a tiger's skin. Thirty gold, 185 silver gilt, 850 silver, 5000 bronze, and 45,000 tin medals were issued. They were struck in 1801-2, but were not distributed until 1808. A similar medal was struck at the Calcutta Mint, and was issued to the Bengal native troops in 1809, eighty three gold and 2786 silver medals only being issued. The die is somewhat different to the English medal, being of much rougher workmanship, and the sun being omitted on the reverse. A loop was added for suspension, and the medal is much thinner.

On the obverse of the medal, which is of large size, is the British hon trampling upon the Bengal tiger, above is a banner, on which is Tippoo's title, Asadullahal Ghalib, the conquering tiger of God, and below is the date, in May, MDCCACIA On the reverse, the army is shown advancing to storm the citadel, above is the sun in the meridian, in the evergue, a Persian inscription The God given fortress of Seringapatam, 28th day of the month Zitadah 1213 of the Hegira (1911 diameter)

The Turkish Sultan, Selim III also ordered gold medals to be struck, and issued to all the officers, on avail and inditary, taking part in the campugn, and the selection of the campugn and the selection of the known as the Order of the Crescent.

The obverse of this medal contains a crescent and star of eight points, surrounded by an ornamental border. The reverse has a similar border, and within the Sultan's cypher, with the date, 1807 below. It was struck in four sizes, the design being the same in all cases.

Owing to a difference in the dies, these midals were struck with the croscent on different sides of the star, sometimes on the right and sometimes on the left side

The medal given to admirals and general officers was $2\tau_0^2$ in dameter and weighed toz 8dwt 3gr. That given to field officers of the army and their equivalent rank in the ravy, was τ_{12}^{2} in dameter, and weighed 19dwt 4gr. The third given to captains in the army and their equivalent rank in the ravy, was τ_{12}^{2} in dameter, and weighed 2rdwt 18gr. and the smallest size was τ_{12}^{4} in dameter, and weighed 8dwt 18gr. It was given to commissioned officers of both services below the rank of captain in the army and the corresponding naval rank.

In some of the earlier issues the crescent and star are a laid with rose diamonds. Colonel Eaton has one of the largest size in his collection, with the crescent and stir entirely formed of diamonds, and Captini Whitaker has one of the medium size with lour diamonds at the vertical and horizontal points of the star. Very few of these inlaid orders were given. They were no doubt special medals, and were replaced by the Orler of the Crescent. The medal in Colonel Eation's collection is thicker than usual and has a raised border with plain reverse. Some of the larger medals (or "Order of the Crescent.) were namelled crimson in the centre. Silver medals, the same size as the smallest gold one, are occasionally met with, and were most likely given to non-commissioned officers.

The medal was worn with an orange ribbon, to which it was attached by means of a small gold chain and hook.

The regiments taking part in this comparint were The 11th, 12th, and 26th Light Dragoons, the Cold stream and Scots Guards, the 1st, 2nd, 8th, 10th, 13th 18th, 20th, 23rd, 24th, 25th, 26th, 27th, 28th, 30th, 40th, 42nd, 44th, 50th, 54th, 58th, 61st, 79th, 80th, 86th, 88th, 89th, 90th, 92nd, and 96th Infantry, the 2nd and 13th Bombay Infantry, the Corsican Rangers, De Roll's and Dillon's Regiments, and Hompesch's Hussars

Mr. Boulton, of Soho, requested and obtained perTratiers, mission to present a medal, at his own expense, to see every seaman who served on board the British flect at the battle off Cape Trafalgar, on October 21st, 1805 The medal was given in gold, silver, and white metal, and was worn suspended from a dark

We now come to the medals issued in connection Mada with the Battle of Maida, in Calabria, where the French were totally defeated, on July 4th 1806 The issue was limited to the commander of the forces, officers in command of brigades and battalions, or to those who succeeded to the command, and also to the deputy quartermaster general, and the medal was worn from the buttonhole of the uniform, attached to a red ribbon with blue edges, 12in wide seventeen medals were issued, and they were all of gold, framed and glazed, and were 141n diameter · Upon the obverse is a laureated head of King

ground is the incient symbol of Sicily, similar to the three legs of Man. Below is the legend: Mauda, Jul. iv. MDCCCVI. Two crossed spears in the exergue,

By a General Order dated Fort William, September 10th, 1811, a medal was awarded to the troops not taking part in the actions of Rodrigues, July 6th, 1809; defeat of the French in the Island of Bourbon, 1809; defeat of the French of the Island of Bourbon, 1810; and eapture of the Island of France, December 3rd, 1810. Her Majesty's 69th and 86th Foot still bear "Bourbon" inscribed on their colours in commemoration of the victory, in which they participated. The 6th and 24th Madras Infantry, and the 4th Bombay Infantry, also took part in the exceptition.

The medal, which is 1'gin diameter, has on the obverse a se, oy holding a Union Jack, and trampling upon a French Eagle. By his side is a field-gun, and in the background the British fleet lies at anchor. On the reverse is a Persian inscription, within a laurel-wreath: This medal was conferred in commonworation of the bravery and accustomed fidelity exhibited by the Sepays of the English Company in the Capture of the Mauritius Islands in the year of the Hegira 1226. Around the wreath is inscribed, Rodrigues vi. July. MDCCCIN. Bourbon viii. July: and Isle of France iii. Dec: MDCCCX. Forty-five gold and 2156 wher medals were issued.

A silver medal was given by the Honourable East India Company to the native troops who assisted Java, at the capture of the Island of Java on August 8th, 1811. On the obverse is a representation of the attack on Fort Cornelis, which is being blown up: on a flagstaff the British flag is shown above the Dutch; above, is the word Cornelis. The reverse has a Persian

For services during the war in Nepaul in 1816, the

troops who took part in it. On the obserse, troops are represented marching across a hilly country, the hills crowned with forts; on the left, a held-piece

Reverse Persian inscription, translated as follows:

This medal was granted by the Nawab Governor General Bahadur, in testimon of the energy, good service, skill, and intrepidity which were displayed

during the Campangus in the Hills, in the years of

Hegira: 1220-1220 (zin. diameter)

All these last medals, given by the Honourable East India Company, were worn with an orange-coloured ribbon, the same as that for the Seringapatam medal, or with a yellow silk cord None of them were conlerred on European troops, whose services were, in some cases, recognised later on by the issue of the Military General Service Medal.

In commemoration of the victories in the Peninsula Peninsula during the years 1808 and 1809, two gold medals Medal, were struck, and awarded to officers. The larger is seased on a globe and wearing a helmet; the right hand is extended and holds a wreath of laurel, and in the left is a palm-branch; on the right is the British lion and on the left a round shield charged with the crosses of the Union. The reverse bears the name of the ovent for which the medal was granted and also the date, within a laurel wreath. The name and rank of the recipient are engraved on the edge. This medal was given exclusively to gineral officers, and was worn in full dress suspended from the neck by a crimson ribbon with blue edges 13m wide. Massive gold bars 2m long and 3m wide bearing a laurented border (with the name of the brittles for which they were given in raised letters in the middle) were added to the medal for additional victories.

The smaller medal was 12 in drameter, and in design is precisely the same as the former. It was given to field officers, and to those who succeeded to the actual command of a battalion during an engagement, in consequence of the death or removal of the original commander. It was worn from the buttonhole of the uniform by a red ribbon with blue edges, 12 in wide. This medal was also given to officers commanding artillery and engineers, adjutant and quartermister generals, and the military secretaries. Both medals were set in gold frames and glazed on both sides. The small medal for "Barrosa" has the name and date on the reverse in raised letters, on all the other medals they are engrived.

These medals were granted for the following engagements in the East Indies North America, and the Peninsula Rolem Vimeira Salingun, Benevente, Corunna Martinique, Talavera, Guadaloupe, Busaco Barrosa, Fuentes d'Onor, Albuera, Java, Ciudad Rodrigo, Badajoz, Salamanca, Fort

Detroit, Vittoria Pyrenees, St Sebastian Nivelle, Chrystler's Farm, Nive, Orthes, and Toulouse The large medal does not seem to have been given for Chateauguay but the smaller one was given in a few instances

As many officers were entitled to more than one Pen usula medal, and the victories b ing recorded on the medal, Gold these after a time with the subsequent addition of the bars were deemed inconvenient. It was, therefore ordered that one medal only should be worn by each officer and that the number of bars should be limited to two As one engagement was borne on the medal this would be equivalent to three actions. Upon a claim to a fourth mark of distinction being admitted a gold cross was to be awarded, in place of the medal, with the names of the four battles inscribed thereon Upon each similar occasion that occurred subsequently to the grant of the cross the bars were again issued to those entitled to them, and were worn on the ribbon to which the cross was suspended. The medals which would have been conferred upon those who had faller or who died before its institution were for warded to their relatives as a token of respect for their memories

The cross is of Maltese form (14m square) having in the centre in high relief a British hon statant in each division of the cross is inscribed the name of a battle, the first one being in the top division they are surrounded by an edge of laurel leaves. The cross is attached to the swivel by a highly ornamented ring. The insembed birs were not attached to the gold suspension bar, but were worn loose on the ribbon which was red with blue edges, rifin wide.

Of the larger and smaller medals, 469 were issued without bars, 143 with one bar, and 72 with two bars Sixty one gold crosses without bars were distributed, 46 with one bar, 18 with two bars, 17 with three, 8 with four, 7 with five, 3 with six, 2 with seven, and only 1 with nine bars, which belonged to the Duke of Wellington. This, with the four names inscribed on the cross, represented thirteen engagements.

A Maltese cross (tien square) known as the "Portuguese Cross," was given to British officers who served Cross on the Portuguese staff during the Peninsular War. The obverse has a garter of blue enamel, upon which are the words Guerra Peninsular, surrounding the Arms of Portugal in gold. On the reverse is a Roman numeral (I-IVI) within a wreath of laurel, and between the arms is a green, enamelled laurel-wreath. It was worn by a blue ribbon with red edges, and was given in gold for four or six campingns, silver for one, two or three. The numbers on the reverse signify the number of campaigns in which the recipient served.

The Commanders Cross was gold (zin diameter over the balls on the points), and eonsists of a star with Portionate four, or more, arms with two points, enamelled white, Command and joined together by a gold wreath of laurel on an enamelled blue ground. On each of the arms is an oval enamelled green on which is inscribed the name of an action at which the recipient was present. In the centre is the head of the King, Olohn VI of Portugal, in gold, on a blue ground. The reverse is similar to the obserse, but in the centre

are the recipient's initials, in gold on a white ground The cross was worn with a broad, crimson ribbon with blue edges, suspended from the neck

This and the foregoing cross for the Peninsular War, were instituted on July 28th 1816

In the Author's collection there was one of these gold crosses with eight duble arms and the names of the following battles Fuentes d'Onor Arroyo de Molinos, Almarez, Maya, Vittoria, Nivelle Pyrenees, Nice, and in the centre of the reverse are the initials "R B" It weighs nearly 202 This cross belonged to Colonel Richard Brunton, of the 13th Light Dragoons, formerly of the 6oth Rifles Colonel Sir Denis Pack had the cross with eleven actions on it, which is the greatest number within the Author's knowledge Only those British officers who were in the Portuguese service received it, and no warrant can be found authorising them to accept and wear it

For the capture of Cayenne, on January 14th, ayenne 1809, a silver and also a bronze medal (2in diameter) were given by the Prince Regent of Portugal Eighty seamen and marines of HMS "Confiance" were engaged, in conjunction with the Portuguese troops It is uncertain whether or not the English allies received permission to wear the medal. During the Peninsular War, a most gallant action

Latham, was performed by Lieut Latham, of the 3rd Buffs At the Battle of Albuera he prevented the Kings colour from falling into the hands of the enemy The colour was carned by Ensign Walsh and the colour party being all killed and wounded Ensign Walsh was talen prisoner It that moment Lieut Latham seized the flag and though surrounded by the enemy he clung with heroic tenneity to his precious charge. A French hussar seized the staff, and cutting at Lieut Litham's head wounded him severely, but failed to make him release his hold. A second sword cut severed his left arm from his body, but grasping the staff with his right hand, he exclaimed "I will surrender it only with my life" Although defenceless he would not yield, but the number of his foes increasing he was knocked down and trampled on, he managed, however, to concerl the colour under his body. At this moment, the advancing British cavalry compelled the French to retire When the Fusiher brigade advanced they found Lieut Latham apparently dead with the colour still in his possession. He was taken to the rear, and subsequently revived. The officers of the Buffs subscribed £100, with which a gold medal was purchased, and it was presented to him, at Reading on August 12th 1813

The medal bears a representation of this heroic action surmounted by a royal crown, and the name and date of the battle, Albuera 16 May, 1811, and the memorable words I will surrender it only with my life surround the whole Reverse To Lieut Latham 3rd Regt (or the Buffs) as a Testimonial from his Brother Officers of their high opinion of his distinguished conduct in defending the colours of the Regiment in the Battle of Albuera, in which he lost an arm and part of his face The medal was 2,76in diameter and was all engraved. A large triangular loop was added for suspension. The King granted Lieut Latham permission to near this medal by a Warrant issued on January 4th, 1813

Within recent years the officers of the Buffs sub . scribed amongst themselves, and purchased a large silver representation of Lient Latham defending the colours, and attacked by a French cavalry trooper It is now used as a centre piece on the mess table

We now come to the medal issued to the troops who took part in the memorable victory of Waterloo Waterloo Medals This is the only General Service Medal which bears [English] a head other than Queen Victoria's The medal was granted at the suggestion of the Duke of Wellington

On April 23rd, 1816, the following notice appeared in the Gasette

Horse Guards, March 10th, 1816

The Prince Regent has been graciously pleased, in the name and on behalf of His Majesty to command that in commentation of the brilliant and decisive Victory of Waterloo, a medal shown or the definition of the decisive victory or waterloo, a medial slid lie conferred upon every officer, non commissioned officer and soldier, present upon that memorable occasion. The medal was originally issued with a steel clip and large steel ring, but these were in many cases removed by the recipients and replaced by ornamental silver bars of various design. The names of the recipients and their regiments were punched on the edge of the medals in large square letters.

All those who were present at the Battle of Ligny on June 16th, and at Quatre Bras on June 17th, or at Waterloo on the 18th, were entitled to the medal It was also given to Sir Charles Colville's division at Halle (2nd Battalion 35th, 54th, 2nd Battalion 59th, and 1st Battalion 91st), although they were not actually engaged in the battle

The ribbon was crimson with blue edges, 1½ in wide The King's German Legion, and other German troops present at Waterloo, also received the medal Those given to the 1st, 2nd, and 6th Dragoons, and the 28th and 42nd Infantry Regiments, are most prized by collectors, as the first three of these regiments formed the celebrated "Union Brigade," and suffered severely, and consequently fewer of the medals were issued to the survivors who were present at the battle

The Prince Regent of England, in 1817, presented the soldiers of his hereditary materials dominions in Germany who were present at the Battle of Waterloo, and to the heirs of those who had fallen at it. In size it is similar to the English medal, and has on the obverse a laureated head of the Prince to the right, and above is the legend, Georg Princ Regent 1815. On the reverse is a military trophy, with laurel-branches below, and the legend Waterloo Jun xim, surrounded by Hanoverischer Tapferkeit The ribbon was the same as that for the English medal, and a large steel ring was added for suspension. The recipient's name, rank, and regiment were indented on the edge in capital letters

On December 23rd, 1815 Frederic, Duke of Nassau, issued a small silver medil to his troops who were hassand present at Waterloo On the obverse is a head of Waterloo the Duke, with Friedrich August, Herzog zu Nassau Reverse A figure of Victory holding a pulm branch, and crowning a Roman warrior with a wreath, legend Den Nassausschen Streitern Bey Waterloo, cxergue, Den 18 Juni 1815 | These medals were issued without names. Another medal, struck in commemoration of the Battle of Waterloo, was issued to the Foreign Legion Sace Gribe of the Duchy of Saxe-Gotha-Altenburg. It was Waterloo instituted in 1816 by Duke Emilius Leopold Augustus for the troops who were engaged in the campaign of 1814-15. For the private soldiers it was issued in bronze, and for the officers in bronze plated (in parts) with gold. It is of larger size than those issued by our country, and has on the obverse the Altenburg rose, and on the reverse a ducal crown, with the legend, in old German characters, Im Kampfe für das Recht. Around the edge are the words, Herzogthum Gotha und Altenburg, MDCCCXIV & MDCCCXV.

Although not, strictly speaking, British war medals, still the last seven go to make up the series of those struck in commemoration of Waterloo, and wrrn by the troops present at the action, and are interesting relics.

The Author had in his collection a bronze proof of the medal first proposed for distribution after the Tream Medal Battle of Waterloo. The edge is inscribed, Field Waterloo Marshal the Duke of Wellington, K.G. & G.C.B.

The obverse is somewhat similar to the silver medal, but a wreath surrounds the bust of the Prince Regent, with 1815 below. The reverse has the same figure of the Angel, but with no date in the exergue. It is very rare, but was discarded in favour of the

is a Multese cross, with crowns in the angles, upon the centre, within a wreath, S Sebastian, 5 de Majo, 1836 The ribbon is dirk purple with two jellow stripes near the edges The medal was issued with out names, and is rare, especially in silver

Another and much rarer medal, in Colonel Gaskell's collection, is a large double silver cross inscribed on the obverse, St. Subastian, v. 2^{ta} 5^a Mayo, 1636, surrounded by a laurel wreath. Upon the reverse is the name of the recipient, surrounded by laurel. Both sides of the medal are engrived

A medal was also given to the rival contingent for services on December 24th, 1836, during the Bibos 18,6 same expedition. The obverse bears a small Maltese double cross with cannon and shells in the corners. In the centre is a tower, with Bilboa, 1836. Above is a laurel-wreath, and there is a bar for suspension. The reverse is plain, and the name is sometimes engraved on it. The ribbon is yellow with blue edges.

The above medal is very scarce.

On the recommendation of the Commissioner of Coorg, dated Mecara, July 14th, 1837, medals were tetras, such as rewards to native soldiers who had served in suppressing the insurrection in Canara in 1837. Queen's head on it The recipient's name, and ship, or regiment, are impressed on the edge in square letters A German silver loop was fixed on the medal for attaching to the ribbon (red with yellow edges, Ilin wide)

The 18th, 26th 49th, 55th, and 98th Regiments took part in this campaign as well as the 37th Madras Infantry, a naval brigade a battalion of marines, and a small complement of Royal and Indian Artillery altogether, about 3000 men

The Government of India presented a silver medal Second to the European and native troops who formed the War garrison of the fortress of Jellalabad in April, 1842 The medals were all alike and on one side have a mural crown, superscribed Fellalabad, and on the other the date-vii April 1842. The suspender was either a silver wire elasp, or a steel clasp and die (13 in diameter) This medal was issued with out names, which were engraved by the recipients, either on the edge or in the field It was also forwarded to the relations of soldiers who died between April 7th and the day the medal was issued The ribbon is what is generally known as the "rainbow" pattern, and represents the colours the Eastern sky at sunrise crimson shading to yellow, and yellow shading into blue (1311 wide) is of watered silk and very handsome and was first designed for this medal

The Governor General of Iodia was dissatisfied with Second the rough design of this medal which was made in Medal India, and after its issue a new medal was decided on, to replace it, and to be handsomer in appear It was designed by Wm Wyon, of London The medals were struck in this country, and were alternards forwarded to Calcutta. They were ready for issue on March 13th, 1845; and the troops were notified that the medals would be issued on their returning those originally presented. The men prelerred the original medals, and very few of the improved ones were applied for. It was known as the Second Jellalabad Medal, or, more popularly, as "the Flying Victory." Upon the obverse is a head of Queen Victoria, crowned. Above is the legend, Victoria Vindex. The reverse bears a figure of Victory flying over the fortress of Jellalabad; in the right hand she holds a wreath, and in the left the Union Jack. Above is the inscription, Fellalabad, vii April; and in the exergue the date, MDCCCXLII. The medal was rather smaller than the first one, being 14in. diameter, and has a German-silver loop attached to it, like the first China. The recipient's name and regiment were indented on the edge in capital letters. The ribbon was of the "rainbow" pattern, as with the first medal. 2596 medals were issued.

The 13th Foot is the only European Regiment which received this distinction. Both the medals are very rare, and are much prized by collectors. The following regiments comprised the garrison of Jellalabad: the 13th (Prince Albert's) Light Infantry, the 35th Native Infantry, Broadfoot's Sappers and Miners, Bengal Artillery, the 5th Light Cavalry (ratives). Anderson's Horse, and the Commissariat.

The Governor-General of India issued a General Order, dated Simla, October 4th, 1842, notifying the sintention of the Indian Government to issue a medal intention of the Indian Government to issue a medal to all who had taken part in the war in Afghanistan in that year. The following British regiments received in that year.

it, and were granted authority to wear it the 3rd Light Dragoons, and the 9th, 13th, 31st, 40th, and 41st Regiments of Infantry

The following regiments were present at Cabul on September 16th, 1842 —British 3rd Light Dragoons, 9th, 13th 31st 40th, and 41st Foot Native 3rd Bombay Cavalry, 4th, 5th, 6th, and 12th Bengal Infantry, and a Company of Bengal Sappers and Miners

The regiments composing the force under General Nott, who defended Candahar in 1842, and the relieving force under General England, were—

British 40th and 41st Foot Native 1st Bengal Cavalry, 3rd Bombay Cavalry, Poona Horse 5th, 6th and 12th Bengal Infuntry

Four medals were struck, the obverse having in all cases the diademed head of the Queen, with Victoria Vindex above, but the reverse differs in each

No 1 has the word Candahar, surmounted by a crown, and with 1842 below, the whole being inclosed within a laurel wreath

within a laurel wreath

No 2 has the words Ghuznee, Cabul, each in a laurel wreath, surmounted by a crown and 1842 below

No 3 has Candahar, Ghuznee, Cabul, with crown above, and 1842 below, within a wreath of laurel

No 4 has the word Cabul, and is similarly arranged to No 1 as regards crown, wreath, and date (14in diameter)

One or two are known with Victoria Regina, instead of Vindex, on the obverse. They are very rare, and were, most probably, either issued in mistike by the Mint, or were struck after the first issue, and with the China die used in place of the correct one. They are more valuable as curiosities than as specimens of the medals issued for this campaign A few medals were also issued with the name on the reverse spelt thus, "Cabul," in large capitals

The ribbon is the same as that for the Jellalabad Medal, and the medal has a steel clasp for suspension, The recipients' names were engraved on the edge either in square letters or in Italian running hand

The medals were distributed according to the services of the recipients, those who had been in all the actions receiving No 3 medal, instead of both No 1 and No 2 Only forty medals like No 1 were issued to English troops

A special medal was struck for the heroic defence of Kulat-i Ghilzie, in May, 1842, during the same helat is eampaign. The garrison consisted of 950 men, and the embraced about 600 men of the Shah's force, three eompanies of the 43rd Bengal Native Infantry (about 250 men), forty European artillerymen, and sixty sappers and miners

The medal has on the obverse a shield inscribed Kelat-1 Ghilste, surmounted by a mural crown, and the whole surrounded by a laurel wreath On the reverse is a military trophy, upon a rectangular base, with the word Inzucta, MIDCCCALII beneath I his is an extremely rare medal (1 4in diameter)

The ribbon was of the usual "rainbow" pattern (17in wide), and the recipient's name was engrised

on the edge, generally in running hand

For the campaign in Scinde, in 1843 the East India Company presented a medal to all the troops engaged, war in and also to the officers and crews of the Indian flotilla, side four ships of which were employed. Three medals were struck all with the same obverse, namely, a diademed head of the Queen, with Victoria Regina above

No 1 has on the reverse, Meeanee, a crown above 1843 below, the whole surrounded by a laurel wreath No 2 is similar but with the word Hyderabad substituted for Meeanee.

No 3 has both names—Mecanee Hyderabad—in scribed with a similar arrangement of crown dite and laurel branches (1 4in diameter)

The ribbon was the same as that for the medals lastly described (14m wide) and the names of the recipients were engraved on the edge of the medal usually in capital letters. A steel clasp was originally issued with it but Sir John Pennefather Colonel of the 22nd Regiment at his own expense substituted a massive silver bar for suspension to the men of his regiment but of similar design to the steel one The 22nd was the only English regiment which received this medal

The medals were issued according as the recipients had been in either or both engagements but no one received more than one for the campaign

The Battle of Meeance was fought on February 17th 1843 and that of Hyderabad on March 24th 1843. The medals were issued in March 1846 and a General Order authorised silver clasps being fixed on the officers medals instead of steel.

The troops engaged at Meeanee were —British 22nd Foot two companies of Royal Artillery Native 9th Bengal Cavalry Scinde Horse Poonal Horse 1st Native Infantry Grenadiers, 12th and 25th Native Infantry

Cavalry, Scinde Horse, Poona Horse, Madras Sappers and Miners, 1st, 8th, 12th, 21st, and 25th Native Infantry The officers and crews of four of the House Last India Company's vessels (Comet," "Meteor," "Planet," and 'Satellite) were also awarded the medal

For the battles of Maharajpoor and Punniar (December 29th, 1843) during the Gwalior Campaign, Gwalor bronze medals were struck and presented to the troops engaged. They were manufactured out of the guns taken at those battles.

The medals are in the form of a star with six points (2in diameter), in the centre of which is a smaller silver star. Around the centre of the smill star is the name of the battle Maharappoor, 1843 and in the centre of the circle so formed the date, Dec agth. The medal for Punniar is exactly the same, but with the name substituted for Maharappoor. The back of the star is plain, and the name and regiment of the recipient are engraved on it in running hand. Originally these stars were fitted with a large, brass hook, for attaching to the breast of the coat, but subsequently suspenders were used, in a variety of shapes, according to the wearers fancy, and the medals were then worn with the 'rainbow ribbon, 13 in wide.

The star worn by Viscount Gough had a silver elephant on the centre in place of the star. It was originally intended to issue all the medals like this, but as it was found to be rather more costly to make, the Government decided to substitute the plainer one

The following troops were engaged at Maharajpoor—British 16th Lancers, 39th and 40th Foot East

India Company Three troops Bengal Horse Artillery, two light batteries Bengal Artillery, Bengal Sappers, 1st 4th, and 10th Light Cavalry, 4th Irregular Cavalry, The Governor-General's bodyguard, part of the 5th Light Cavalry, acting as Sir H Gough's escort, 2nd Regumental Grenadiers, also the 14th, 16th, 31st, 43rd, and 56th Native Infantry

At Punnar the troops engaged were the 3rd and 50th Foot, and the 9th Lancers (the only British regiments), the 8th Bengal Irregular Cavalry, a company of Sappers and Miners, and five companies of the 39th and 50th Native Infantry

The great battles of the Sutley Campaign, or first style Sikh War (1845 6) were all commemorated by medals and bars Four medals were issued for the battles of Moodkee, Ferozeshuhur, Altwal, and Sobraon For the first action the soldier received the corresponding medal, and bars were added for the subsequent actions, with, of course, the exception of the medal for "Sobraon" The following is the wording of the General Order announcing the issue of the medal

If the individual is entitled to be decorated for two battles, he will receive one silver medal bearing the name of the first battle in which he was engaged and a clasp, to bar, on which will be inscribed the name of the second battle. This bar will be fixed on the riband immediately above the medal if entitled to be decorated for a third battle the name of that battle will be inscribed on the second bar and if entitled to be decorated for four battles the name of the fourth battle shall be inscribed on the third bar, the bars being fixed in the order in which the battles were fought

is a trophy of Sikh arms, above, the legend, To the Army of the Sutley, and in the exergue, the name and date (the latter in numerals) of the battle for which the medal was struck (1 4in diameter)

This is generally considered W Wyon's finest piece of work and is the first medal to which separate bars were attached They are oblong (131n long by 51n. wide) with recessed ends, and fastened together by small rivets, with the letters in relief, and are attached to the medal by means of an ornamental clasp and swivel. The names and regiments were punched on the edge of the medal in capital letters Only two British regiments received the medal and three bars (for four battles), namely, the 31st and 50th

The following is a list of the medals and com binations of bars, which are arranged to read upwards from the medal, the most recent action being at the top

- 6 Medal with Two Bars . Chilian and and Goojerat

The authorised arrangement of the bars w s to be Mooltan nearest the medal, then Goojerat, or Chitanwala nearest the medal, then Goojerat, but owing to the bars hiving in many instances been fixed by natives who could not read English, the order is frequently found received on the medals

The regiments engaged were

was granted for Egiff, 1801, to those who were still alive

Twenty-eight bars in all were given-Nos 7 and 9 for services in the West Indies, and 18, 19, and 20 for services in North Anenca It will be noticed that although the Order mentions that th cover services in 1793 no burs were given for services before 1801, and none between that date and 1806. The bars are 1½ in long and ½ in wide and have the name of the battle in raised letters. They are fixed ½ in apart in most cases, but offices have the burs 3 in apart. The burs are fistened together, in sets of three, by means of small rivets, on medals having six, nine, twelve, &c, burs. No rivets are used on medals having two and three bars. They are attached to the medal by a strught clasp and swivel.

The medal was issued in 1845 and there were 19 000 claimants for it. For the Maida bar there were 500 applicants

For the bar for Fort Detroit the following troops sent in a claim Fifty two men of the 41st Foot five men of the Royal Artillery, one man of the 49th Foot (who also got the bar for Christlers Farm) the Canadian Militia and so ne Indians

For the Chatcanguan bar, only three men of the Royal Artillery are mentioned in the War Office Medal Rolls as having sent in a claim. It was also given to the Canadian Fencible Militia Third Butthlon Embodied Militia the Chatcanguay Chasseurs, and a few Indian warriors.

It is recorded in the War Office lists that only four men of the Royal Artillery sent in a claim for the bar for Chrystle's Farm besides forty four men of the 49th I oot and seventy nine men of the 89th Foot Several of the Canadan Whitin and a few Indian warriors also received it

The bar for Bence enter was issued separately and was also combined with Sahagun, thus—Sahagun & Benezente. The bars were issued in accordance with the services of the recipient, and the first buttle is always placed nearest the medal. The number of bars ranges from one to fifteen, and the combinations are endless. No medals were issued without bars, and only two were given with fifteen. The medal was also given to the survivors of the German troops who served during the war.

On the obverse of the medal is a diademed head of the Queen, with the date of issue— $r\delta_s\phi$ —below; above is the legend, Victoria Regina Reverse Upon a dais the Queen, robed and crowned, stands, placing a laurel-wreath upon the head of the Duke of Wellington, who kneels before her. By the side of the dats is the British lion couchant; above is the legend, To The British Army, and in the exergue the date, 1793-1814. The recipient's name and regiment are indented on the edge in capital letters. The ribbon is crimson with blue edges, 14in. wide The medal was the same in every case, only differing in the bars, and was known as the "Military General Service Medal" (1.4in diameter.)

The following troops were present at the various battles in the Peninsula, &c, commemorated by bars on the medal, in many cases by detachments only:

The various combinations of the bars are so numerous that it is impossible to specify them here.

On April 14th, 1851, the Governor-General of India East announced that the Queen had been graciously tails pleased to assent to the proposition of the Court of Wissel Directors of the East India Company, that a medal be struck and Issued to the troops who took part in the following campaigns, battles, and sieges, from 1799-1826 It was also granted to such officers and men of the Royal Navy, and the Company's Marine, as took part in the Burmese War of 1824-6 As many of the soldiers were dead at the time of issue, the medal was only given to the survivors

The following are the actions commemorated by bars issued with the medal, which commence in 1803, although the medal was in ended to commemorate services from 1799. The British and some of the native regiments which took part in the various actions are also given

There is a great variety of combinations of these bars, but the greatest number known to the Author on one medal is five although it is said that in the records of the India Office some men were entitled to as many as seven bars, but whether any were ever issued is not certain. The Duke of Wellington received the medal with three burs—Assaye, Argaum Gawil ghur. No medals were issued without bars.

South Her Majesty granted a medal to commemorate the Africa actions against the Kaffirs, in South Africa in the years 1834-5 1846 7, and from December 24th, 1850, to February, 6th, 1853 The medal was the same in all cases, and the only way to distinguish for which year it was granted is by the number of the regiment indented on the edge of the medal The British regiments engaged in the wars of 1834-5 were the 27th, 72nd, and 75th Foot In 1846 7, the 7th Dragoon Guards, 6th, 27th, 45th, 73rd, 90th, and 91st Foot, and the Rifle Brignde, were engaged In 1850-3, the 12th Lancers, 2nd, 6th, 12th, and 43rd Foot, Royal

Marines, 2nd Battalion 6oth, 73rd, 74th, and 91st Foot, and the 1st Battalion Rifle Brigade, were engaged The Cape Mounted Rifles and the men of the Naval Brigade also did good service. The crews of the following ships received the medal HMS "Castor," "Dee," "Hermes," "Rhadamanthus," and "Styx" The medal has on the obverse the head of Queen Victoria, with the legend, Victoria Regina, above On the reverse, the British Lion is stooping to drink under a mimosa bush, the words South Africa above, and the date, 1853, in the exergue The recipient's name and regiment are indented on the edge in capital letters. The ribbon is orange with two broad and two narrow stripes of dark blue, thin wide No bars were issued with this medal (1 Ain diameter)

In 1854 (Junuary 23rd), the Queen sanctioned the issue of a medal "for the purpose of commemorating Borners, the services rendered during the operations against the Burmese in 1852-3". This medal has since been known as the 'Indian General Service Medal," and Indian General Service Medal," and Indian General Service Medal, and Indian General Se medal in all cases being the same

In cases where the recipient had been in two or more campaigns, and had already received the medal a har only was added to those already won, instead of granting another medal. This rule seems to have been broken through occasionally, as, since the issue of the medal and bar for Perak, many instances occur of men having two of the medals, with birs for different campaigns. When fresh bars were added in cases where the recipient was already in possession of the medal, the most recent action commemorated by a bar was placed nearest to the medal, the new bar being furnished with ears for attaching to those on the lower side of that previously issued, except "Pegu," which is retained on the medal

The bars and clasp are similar in design to those issued originally with the Sutley medal, but the former are 1751n long, except "Pegu, which 18 1åin

The following British regiments took part in the Pero 1852 action in Burma for which this medal was first granted (the bar was inscribed Pegu) the 18th, 51st, and Soth, and also the men of the Naval Brigade The medal has on the obverse the diademed head

bave been engraved, sometimes in capitals, at others in running hand

The combinations of these bars are endless, but they chiefly occur on the medals of the Native Indian troops and their European officers. The greatest number on one medal is seven, and this only in one instance. The combination is as follows: Hunza, 1891, Samana, 1891, Hazara, 1888, Burma, 1885, 7 Jouaki, 1877-8, North West Frontier, Umbeyla. This medal is worn by the Subadar-Major of No. 4 Battery Punjab Frontier Force, and he also has the Afghan and Mutny medals. Sir Wm. Lockhart, K.C.B., has the medal with six bars.

We now come to the medals issued by our own and foreign governments for the Crimean War 10 Crimea, 1854-6 The same medal was awarded to the army and navy, but differed only in the bars issued, although most of these, too, were awarded in common to both Services The original Order for the issue of the medal was dated December, 1854 and at that time only two bars were authorised namely, those for Alma and Inkermann, which were awarded to those who had been at either or both of the battles Subsequently, in February, 1855, a bar for Balaklava was sanctioned, and again in October of the same year, one for Sebastopol, to all those soldiers who had been present at the operations between October 1st, 1854, and September 9th 1855

The medal has on the obverse, like all the foregoing, the same head of Her Majesty as was on the Peninsula Medal, with the legend, Victoria Regina above, and the date, 1854, in the exergue on the reverse, a flying figure of Victory is crowning a Roman warnor with a wreath, the word Crimea is inscribed on the left of the figure. The warrior carries a sheathed sword in his right hand and on his left arm is a round shield on which is shown the British lion. The medal is by W. Wyon. (14 am diameter.) The bars are very ornamental and are in the shape of oak leaves ornamented with accorns. The name of the victory which they commemorate is in raised letters in the centre of the leaf. The ribbon is light blue with light yellow edges, tim wide. The name and regiment of the recipient are either indented or engraved in square capitals, on the edge of the medal. The recipients in many cases had them engraved at their own expense. The clasp for suspension is also very ornamental to match the bars and is peculiar to this medal.

Four was the greatest number of bars issued with one medal namely, Alma, Balaklara Inhermann, and Sebastopol A special bar for Azoff was also issued to the navy Medals given to high cavalry regiments with bars for Balaklava are most prized by collectors on account of the celebrated charge which occurred at that battle The regiments who formed the 'Light Brigade were the 17th Lancers and the 13th Light Dragoons in the first line, and the 11th Hussars 4th Light Dragoons, and the 8th Hussars, in the second line

Many medals were issued without the bars being lastened on so that much confusion exists in their arrangement. It is stated that many men received bars for battles at which they were not actually present, owing to the lax way in which the bars were issued. The following is a list of the various combinations of bars reading upwards from the medal.

MEDAL WITHOUT BAR

The Marines received bars for Inkermann, Balaklava, and Sebastopol The medal was also given to some of the French troops engaged in the campaign, and was much prized by them

Every man who was present at the Alma and Inkermann, or at Inkermann or Balaklava, or at both-in short, everyone who was in the Crimea between October 1st, 1854, and September 9th 1855was granted the bar for Sebastopol, excepting certain non combatants to whom was awarded the medal without bur Some medals were, however, distributed before the date of the General Order granting the Sebastopol bar, but the bar was in most cases added to the medal after issue. No doubt many men entitled to the bar and who had left the army did not send in their medals for alteration, and also the relatives of men who had died meanwhile, and this may account for the fact of many undoubtedly genuine medals being met with without the Schattopol bar, although the intention of the authorities was that all the medals for Inkermann and Balaklava should have it

The single bar medals for Balaklava and the combinations Alma-Inkermann, Balaklava-Inkermann, Alma, Balaklava-Inkermann, although not combinations in accordance with the spirit of the General Order, are occasionally met with, and are undoubtedly genuine as they stand, although in a sense imperfect They are, nevertheless, in the Author's opinion, quite worthy of a place in the collector's cabinet

The naval medals were, as a rule, issued without the names of the recipients or of their slops being engraved on the edge, and in most cases where they are found they have been engraved at the recipient's expense

The following regiments were engaged 1st, 4th, 5th, and 6th Dragoon Guards, 1st, 2nd, and 6th Dragoons, 4th and 13h Light Dragoons, 8th, 1oth, and 11th Hussars, 12th and 17th Lancets, Royal Horse Artillery, Royal Field Artillery, Royal Engineers, Land Transport Corps and Ambulance Corps, 3rd Battalion Grenader Guards, 1st Battalion Coldstream Guards and Scots Fusiher Guards, 1st Battalion Attalions 1st Foot, 1st Battalion 3rd Foot, 1st Battalion 4th Foot, 7th, 9th, 13th, 14th, 17th, 18th 19th, 2oth 21st, 23rd, 28th, 30th, 31st, 33rd, 34th, 36th 39th, 41st, 42nd, 44th, 46th, 47th, 48th, 49th, 50th, 55th 56th, 57th, 62nd, 63rd, 68th, 71st, 72nd, 77th, 79th, 82nd, 88th, 89th, 90th, 93rd, 95th, and 97th Foot and 1st and 2nd Battalions Rifle Brigade

The following troops were present at the three great battles in the Crimea:

ALMA, September 20th, 1854.—4th and 13th Light Dragoons; 8th and 11th Hussars; 17th Lancers; Grenadier, Coldstream, and Scots Fusilier Guards; 1st, 4th, 7th, 19th, 20th, 21st, 23rd, 28th, 30th, 33rd, 38th, 41st, 42nd, 44th, 46th, 47th, 49th, 50th, 55th, 63rd, 68th, 77th, 79th, 88th, 93rd, and 95th Foot.

BALANLAVA, October 25th, 1854—4th and 5th Dragoon Guards; 1st, 2nd, and 6th Dragoons; 4th, 8th, 11th, and 13th Light Dragoons; 17th Lancers (the last five regiments formed the celebrated "Light Brigade"); and the 93rd Highlanders.

INKERMANN, November 5th, 1854.—4th, 8th, 11th, and 13th Hussars; 17th Lancers; the three regiments of Fnot Guards; 1st, 4th, 7th, 19th, 20th, 21st, 23rd, 28th, 30th, 33rd, 38th, 41st, 47th, 49th, 50th, 55th, 57th, 63rd, 68th, 77th, 88th, and 95th Foot; two batteries Royal Horse Artillery, and two Royal Artillery Field Batteries.

Two companies of the 46th Foot were present at Alma and Inhermann; six officers and 225 men got the bar for Alma, and six officers and 201 men received in addition that for Inhermann. These medals are consequently rather scarce.

A special medal was issued to seamen and marines who served in the flect in the Baltic. On the obverse the served in the flect in the Baltic. On the obverse the served in the flect in the flect is a similar head of the Queen to that on the flast isses described medal, but without date below. On the reverse is a figure of Britannia seated on a rock, and holding in her right hand a trident; by her side is a naval cannon and a pile of cannon-balls; she is looking towards the fortress of Bomarsund, and in the distance is Fort Sveaborg; above is the word Baltie; and in the exergue the date, $85.5. T ribbon is yellow with blue edges, 1\frac{1}{2}in wide \o bars were given with the medal (1 4in diameter)

This medal was intended for the navy only but two officers and ninety men of the Sappers and Miners, who served on board the flag ship, received it, with their names and reguments indented on the edge like those granted to the army for the Crimea

The Sultan of Turkey issued a medal to all the Tarks troops engaged in the war—English French, and for the Sardman On the obverse is a field-piece over the standing upon the Russian flag and a mortar and anchor are alongside behind are grouped the flags of the following nations English, French, Sardman and Turkish, and in the exergue of the English medal is the word Crimea, and the date, 1855 The reverse has the Sultans cypher inclosed in a laurel wreath, the word Crimea in Turkish, 18

below, and the date of the Hegyra, 1271

The obverse of the medal differs in the arrangement of the flags according to the nation for which the medal was intended. On the English medal, the flags of Great Britain and Torkey are in front, with those of France and Sardinia in the rear, below, Crimea 1855. The French has the flags of France and Turkey in front, with the Sardinian and English behind, in the evergue are the words La Crimète 1855. The Sardinian medal has the national flag with that of Turkey, to the fore with those of France and England in the rear below, La Crimeta 1855. Owing to the wreck of the ship conveying the majority of the English medals, the remainder were issued indiscriminately to the troops, without regard to nationality, the original intention being that the Linglish, French and Sardinian medals should be issued to the armies for which they were specially designed. As a result of the accident, many of our soldiers received the French or Sirdinian medal instead of the one originally intended for them. This medal is not made of such pure silver as those issued by our own Government.

They were not very fine specimens of medallic art, being somewhat roughly executed. An improved die was made in England, in every respect similar in design to the Turkish one, but better finished and medals struck from it were distributed to the officers in place of those issued by the Turkish Government

All these medals were issued without names or regiments on them and were worn with a crimson wither close that the same original ribbon was only \(\frac{1}{2} \text{in} \) wide

The Turkish General Service Medal (not struck specially for Crimein services) was awarded by the Denthe Sultan to Colonel Simmons and sixteen men of the 1811 toth Company Royal Engineers and also to the officers and thirty men of the crew of a gunboat for service on the Danube. The obverse has the Sultan's cypher within a circle on either side of which are flags and laurel branches, surmounted by a crescent and star. The reverse has a large elliptical star of twelve points, in the centre of which is a smaller one of six points. Below is a secoil with a snall star at each end and undermeath is another star, surrounded by olive branches. Upon the scroll is the Persian inscription. Mischim: Ifithar (the decoration or mark of honour or glory). The ribbon is the same as that for the previous medal.

The medals given to Colonel (now Field Marshall

Sir John Lintorn) Simmons and to Commander H Carr Glyn, R N, and other officers were in gold, the others in silver All were however of the same size and design Very few Turkish officers received the medal in gold, as it was found to be too expensive, and after the issue to the British officers it was stopped

Medals-seven in all-were awarded also to British Sharria officers in command of Turkish troops for the defence rass of Silistria One was given, in gold, to Sir J L Simmons, the remaining six officers receiving them in silver On the obverse is the Sultan's cypher, within a wreath of laurel and oak On the reverse is a representation of the city of Silistria, and below, the date of the Hegira, 1271 (1854) The ribbon was crimson, with green edges

A silver medal for the Defence of Kars was given Defence of to Sir Fenwick Williams, and the officers under him, also to an artillery soldier servant The obverse was exactly the same as that of the previous medal, but the reverse had a view of the city of Kars, and below, the year of the Hegira 1272 (1855) The ribbon was the same as in the foregoing case

Owing to the small number of medals issued, the last three are very rare

The King of Sardinia conferred a medal for services Sandinten in the Crimea upon 400 selected officers, non com the Crimea missioned officers and men of the army, and fifty sailors and marines The obserse has the arms of Savoy and the crown of Sardinia above, surrounded by a wreath of palm- and olive-branches, above is the legend, Al valore militare On the reverse is a laurelwreath, within which are engrised the recipient's name and regiment, around the wreath are the words,

Sp distance d Oriente 1855 1856 His ribbon is dirk blue watered silk, and the medal was suspended from it by means of a loop A list of the recipients is given in Long's "British War Medals"

The Decoration of the French Imperial Order of the Legion of Honour was given by the Emperor Legion of Napoleon III to a number of officers and men of the Imperial Army and navy who had distinguished themselves during the Crimean War

There were five different classes of the cross distributed, according to the rank of the recipients The majority received the fifth class which consists of a silver star of ten points, covered on both sides with white enamel, fixed upon an enamelled green laurel wrenth The centre is silver gilt, and has a head of the Emperor Napoleon I, surrounded by a blue enamelled band, inscribed, in gold letters, Napoléon Emp des Français The centre of the reverse is also silver gilt and has the French Imperial eagle, surrounded by a blue enamelled band bearing the legend, in gold letters, Honneur et Patrie A large silver imperial crown and ring are the means of suspension. The ribbon is of crimson watered silk. The other classes are of similar design, but are made of gold instead of silver

Another medal was also given by the French Emperor to 226 non commissioned officers and men fresh for distinguished gallanty. It was likewise given to be the nuy, and the men were specially selected for this decoration. Only two officers received it namely, II R H the Duke of Cambridge and Sir William Codrington. The latter was presented by Marshal Pelissier with his own medal.

The medal is silver-gilt and eonsists of a laurel wreath, in the centre of which is a bust of the Emperor Napoleon III, surrounded by a blue enamelled circle, inscribed in gilt letters, Louis Napoleon On the reverse within a blue enamelled circle, are the words Valeur et discipline, the whole is surmounted by the French imperial eagle, with outspread wings and there is a ring for suspension. The medal is worn with a wide, watered silk orange ribbon with green edges. A list of the names of the recipients is given in Long's British War Medals."

The medal was not confined to this empaign as it is still given to French soldiers who specially distinguish themselves. The Author has seen it, with the head of the Republic substituted for that of the Emperor, worn by French soldiers in conjunction with the medal for the late war in Tonquin, and with the imperial eagle replaced by a trophy of arms. The Sultan of Turkey awarded the Order of the Order Medydde to upwards of a thousand officers of the Crimea Five classes of this Order were issued, according to the rank of the recipient. It consists of a silver star of seven points, between which are seven small

The fifth class has a silver convex centre, encircled by a gold band with crimson enamelled centre. The brind is inscribed, in Turkish with the words, Zeal, Devotion, Fidelity, 1268 (1852—the date of the institution of the Order). A gold crescent and star, enamelled crimson, constitute the suspender. The reverse is plain, and the ribbon is crimson with green edges. The decoration was issued without any name on it. The first, second, third, and fourth classes are of the same design, but are larger, and have gold centres instead of silver. The first second, and third are worn with a ribbon round the neck instead of on the left breast like the lowest and fourth classes

· The first and second classes have in addition a star of similar design, which is worn on the left and right sides respectively

This decoration was also given to a number of officers above the rank of captain, for services in the Egyptian War of 1882 and the subsequent Soudan campaigns.

The next medal issued by our Government was that for the war in Persia in 1856-7. It was sanctioned remisin a General Order, dated April 12th, 1848. The Indian General Service Medal was given, as instituted for the second war in Burma, but with the word Persia on the bar. It was also given to the crews of the ships of the Indian navy.

The following British regiments were present in Persia: 14th Light Dragoons: 64th and 78th Foot. There were also present the ard Bombay Cavalry: Poona Horse: 1st Scinde Horse: 2nd Bombay Europeans; Bombay Sappers and Miners; 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th, 8th, 11th, 15th, 20th, 22nd, 23rd, 25th, 26th, 28th, and 20th Bombay Infantry,

We now come to the medal given for services during the Indian Mutiny (1857-8). It was granted ladian Muting, by a General Order, dated August 18th, 1858. There 1871 were five bars issued, namely:

1. Delhi, 30th May to 14th Sep-3. Relief of Lucknow, Novemtember, 1837. ber. 1857.

June. 18;5.

s. Lu. heer, and to alst March, 2. Defence of Lucknow, 29th June to 25th September, 1835. s. Central India, January to 1857.

They were 11in long by $in wide at the ends, and reduced to $in wide in the middle. The ends are "fish-tailed," and the letters are in rused capitals. The bars are attached to the medal by an ornamental curved clasp and swie!

Four was the greatest number of bars issued on one medal, and three bars were given only to the oth Lancers and Bengal Horse Artillery

The medal has on the obverse the diademed head of the Queen surmounted by Victoria Regina. On the reverse is a figure of Britannia standing holding a wreath in her outstretched right hand, on her left arm is an oval shield with the crosses of the Union on it, behind her stands the British lion, the word India is above, and the date, 1857 1838, in the exergue (1 4m diameter) The ribbon is scarlet and white in alternate stripes, two of scarlet and three of white, 14m wide. The name and regiment, or ship, of the recipient, were indented in small capital letters on the edge of the medal.

The following is a list of the various combinations of bars issued with the medal and are arranged with the bar for the first action commemorated farthest from the medal

The medal was also granted to the Naval Brigade, consisting of detachments from the ships "Pearl," "Shannon," "Calcutta," and "Sans Pareil," and had the following bars

TWO BARS—Lucknow, Relief of Lucknow. ONE BAR—Lucknow. Relief of Lucknow. MEDAL WITHOUT BAR,—To the officers and men of the "Pearl" Brignick.

The medals for the Defence of Lucknow awarded to the 32nd Foot, under Colonel Inglis, are most prized by collectors, on account of its heroic defence.

This was the last medal given by the Honourable

East India Company.

The following British regiments received the medal: 7th Hussars, 9th Lancers, 8th Hussars, 12th Lancers, 14th Hussars; 5th, 8th, 10th, 13th, 23rd, 32nd, 32th, 38th, 42nd, 52nd, 53rd, 60th, 61st, 64th, 71st, 72nd, 75th, 78th, 79th, 80th, 82nd, 83rd, 84th, 86th, 88th, 90th, 93rd, 95th, 97th, 101st, 102nd, 104th, and 108th Foot; and the Rifle Brigade.

By a General Order, dated March 6th, 1861, Her Majesty granted the issue of a medal to the troops chiasengaged in the war in China, 1857-60. The obverse "137500 of the medal is the same as on that granted for the first Chinese War (see page 55); and the reverse is similar, but with the date, 1842, left out of the exergue. The ribbon also is the same—crimson with yellow edges, 14in. wide. When this medal was first issued the ribbon had five stripes: namely, blue, yellow, red, white, and green; but it was subsequently altered to crimson and yellow.

Five bars were issued with this medal to the army and navy—China 1842, to those who had been in the first war; Canton 1857, Taku Forts 1858, Taku Forts

1860, Pekin 1860, and Fatshan 1857, to the navy only. Only one medal was issued with five bars, and that to a gunner in the Royal Marine Artillery. It is now in Colonel Eaton's collection, and has bars for Fatshan 1857, Canton 1857, Taku Forts 1858, Taku Forts 1860 and Pekin 1860. In the Author's collection there was a medal with four bars given to a sailor—China 1842, Fatshan 1857, Canton 1857 and Taku Forts 1858. The bars and clasp are of the same design as those issued with the Mutiny Medal, and are fastened together by small rivets

The naval medals were all issued without names on the edge, but the army received them with names and regiments indented in capital letters

The medal with two bars for Pekin 1860 and Taku Forts 1860 given to the 1st Dragoon Guards is rare, as only two squadrons of this regiment were present. The following British regiments also took part in the campaigns 1st Battahon 3rd Foot, 1st, 2nd, 31st, 44th, 59th, 6oth, 67th, and 99th Foot, Royal Artillery, and Sappers and Miners. There were also present the 11th and 19th Bengal Lancers, and the 20th and 23rd Bengal Infantry

MEDAL WITHOUT RAR

To the army and navy

Another medal was designed and struck in connection with the war in 1812, but it was not issued, as it was thought it might give offence to the Chinese The obverse had the usual head of the Queen, surmounted by the legend. Victoria Regina reverse was the British lion trampling upon Chinese dragon, above Armis exposcere pacem, and in the exergue, Nanking, 1842 The ribbon was to have been the same as that for the above-crimson with vellow edges. The medal is only to be found as a proof

A Royal Warrant was issued on July 1st, 1860. authorising the issue of a third bar with the Indian North-Wes General Service Medal, inscribed North West Frontier, 1810-65. for services from the year 1840 to 1863

This last distribution was authorised by General Order, No 98, June 14th, 1884 The medal and ribbon are the same as previously described on page 83

A similar medal to that already described for New Zealand, on page 67, was issued for services in the labeled same country from 1860 to 1866, by a General Order dated March 1st, 1969 The medal was granted to both Services, and is precisely similar on the obverse to the former one, but the dates on the reverse differ according to the years during which the recipients was engaged. Owing to incompleteness in the returns many medals were issued without the dates of the recipients' services on the reverse.

The following is a complete list of the dates on the reverse of New Zealand Medals:

In 1860 a medal was granted by Pope Pius IA to Print the Irish Brigade of Volunteers who served under Brigade Major O Reilly against Garibaldi Although not, strictly speaking, a military medal specially given to British soldiers, still, as many of our countrymen received it, it is worthy of a place here

to wear it was neither asked nor obtained

The medal is of an unusual type, and is made of German silver, plated Instead of being a solid disc the centre is open, it is, in fact, a broad ring, with a cross in the centre. Around the circle, on the obverse, is the legend. Pro Petri Sede. Pio IA P M. A. X. XV. On the reverse, Victoria quae vincit mundum fides nostra. In the centre is an inverted cross resting upon the head of a serpent. The ribbon is crimson with two white stripes, with narrow yellow edges. The medal was issued without names on the edge, and has a clasp for suspension not unlike that issued with the Crimean Medal.

By a General Order, dated December, 1872, another bar, inscribed Looshai, was granted with the Indian Looshai General Service Medal for the Looshai Expedition, 1872, December, 1871, to February, 1872, under Generals Nuthall and Bourchier. No British troops were engaged in this war, and the medal and bar were only given to native troops and their European officers.

The troops comprising the Looshai Force were:

The troops comprising the Looshai Force were: One battery Peshawar Mountain Artillery; two companies Sappers and Miners; 2nd and 4th Goorkhas; 22nd and 27th Punjab Infantry; 42nd and 44th Assam to both services alike.

The next medal in order is that granted for the Abyssinian War, from October 4th, 1867, to April Abyssinian War, from October 4th, 1867, to April Abyssinian War, from October 4th, 1867, to April Abyssinian 19th, 1868. The medal is smaller than, and entirely different in design to, those usually issued, being only 14in. diameter. Another special feature about it is, that instead of the name and regiment of the recipient being engraved or stamped on the edge, they are stamped, in relief, in the centre of the medal. It is altogether an unusual type of medal, and the design is very fine. It was awarded

On the obverse is a crowned and veiled bust of the Queen, similar in design to, though smaller than, that on the New Zealand Medal (see page 67), within a beaded circle. It is surrounded by a star of nine points, the inner angles of which each contain a letter, as follows: A. B. Y. S. S. I. N. I. A. On the reverse is a laurel - weath, within which are the recipient's name and regiment, or ship, stamped in raised letters within a beaded circle; except on the medals given to the Indian troops, which had the names, &c., engraved. An imperial crown and a large silver ring for suspension surmount the medal. The ribbon is broad crimson with broad white edges, 14m. wide

The following regiments received the medal: British: 3rd Dragoon Guards, 4th, 26th, 33rd, and 45th Foot; Royal Artillery and Engineers, besides the Naval Brigade. Nature Sende Horse; 3rd Bombay Cavalry, 10th Bengal Lancers; 12th Bengal Cavalry; Bombay and Madras Sappers and Miners; 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 10th, 18th, 21st, 25th, and 27th Bombay Native Infantry. The crews of the following ships also received the medal: "Argus," "Dryad," "Daphne," "Nymphe," "Octavia," "Satellite," "Star," "Spiteful," and "Vigilant."

On June 1st, 1874, a medal was authorised for the shanter, war in Ashantee, from June 9th, 1873, to February 4th, 1874; and a bar for the Battle of Amoalul, inscribed Coomassie, was added for those present. It is 12in, long by 72in, wide, with the word in raised capitals, and is attached to the medal by means of a straight clasp and swivel.

On the obserse of the medal is a head of Her Majesty, with a diadem and veil, surrounded by the legend, Victoria Regina The reverse is in high relief, and represents a skirmish in the bush between British infantry and a number of semi-nude Ashantees, This is one of the finest designs amongst our medals, and is the work of E. J. Poynter, A.R.A. The obverse is by Leonard Wyon. The recipient's name and regiment, or ship, and the date, 1873-7 %  engraved on the edge of the medal, and fil' 'th black colouring matter. (1:4in. diameter; bon is yellow with black edges, and has black stripes down the centre, 13m. wide

The following regintents took part in the campaign 23rd and 42nd Foot, 2nd Britalion Rifle Brigade, 2nd West India Regiment, about 150 men of the Royal Engineers, the Houssa Artillery; and the Naval Brigade of seamen and marines from the following ships "Active," "Amythyst," "Argus," "Barracouta," "Beacon," "Bittern," "Coquette," "Deco," "Dromedary," "Druid," "Encounter," "Himalay," "Vaerlin," "Rattlesnake," 'Seagull," "Simoon," "Tamit," and "Victor Emmanuel" The number of medals issued to both Services, with and without the bit, was 11,000

Another issue of the Indian General Service Medal was authorised on September 1st, 1879 with a bar resk, for Perak, for the campaign in 1875 6 (November 1873-6), and by a cand to Marel 20th) against the Malays, and by a General Order, No 58, 1881, the grant was extended to the forces engaged against the same tribes from November 27th to December 20th, 1874. It was worn with the usual red and blue ribbon.

The troops taking part in the campaign were the tst Battalion 3rd Foot, the roth and 80th Foot, the Nival Brighte, and Indian troops, with the Royal Artillery and Fingineers. The crews of HMS "Charybdis" and "Hart" received the medal for 1874, and those of HMS "Egeria" "Fly," 'Vodeste,' "Philomel," "Ringdove," and "Thistle" for 1876

For the expedition against the Afridis, in 1877-8, an eighth har was granted to the medal, by an lowest Order issued on March 1st, 1879. The bar was 1879's inscribed Jonaki, 1877-78. Only those troops who were engined between November 9th, 1877, and Junuty 19th, 1878, received the medal and bar

The troops employed in this expedition were the oth and 51st Foot, 4th Battahon Rifle Brigade, two companies, 20th 22nd, and 27th Punjab Native Infantry 14th Sikhs 17th Bengal Cavalry, two companies Royal Engineers one battery each of

Field and Horse Artillery The long series of wars in South Africa, from 1877 South to 1881, was commemorated by medals and bars Africa The bars are of a novel design as, instead of bearing the name of a victory they merely record the year of service covering all the operations in which the recipient was engaged. They are 1-1 long by 5 in wide, and are of similar design to those issued with the Sutley medal, the date being in raised figures The clasp is also similar. The medal is similar to the South African Medal for 1853 (see page 82), but instead of the date being in the exergue, there are a 7ulu shield and four crossed asseguis. The ribbon is the same namely, orange with dark blue broad and narrow stripes, and the names and regiments of the recipients are engraved on the edges of the medal in capital letters

. The bars issued were as follows 1877 8, 1878, 1878-9, 1879, 1877 8 9 The medal was also issued without a bar to the troops who were employed in Natal from January to September, 1879, but who did not go into Zululand No one received a medal with more than one bar, as they were issued according to the year, or years, of service of the recipients The medal was awarded to both services

21st (1870), 24th (1877-8-0), 57th (1870), 58th (1870). and and ard Battalions 60th (1870), 80th (1878-0), 83rd (1878-0), 88th (1877-8-0), ooth (1877-8-0), orst (1870), gand (1870), gath (1877-8-0), gath (1870). and goth (1870) Foot; and the crews of H.M.S. "Active." "Boadicea." "Euphrates." "Forester." "Himalaya," "Orontes." "Shali." "Tamar." and "Tenedos"

Many memorable incidents occurred in these wars. including the death of the Prince Imperial of France. the annihilation of a portion of the 24th Regiment at Isandhyahna: the heroic defence of Rorke's Drift: the capture of Cetewayo, &c.

A medal and six bars were issued for actions during the Afghan Wars in 1878-9-80. The obverse has a Afghanbust of Her Majesty, with crown, and veiled, and 1578-50 wearing the ribbon of the Garter, surrounded by the legend, Victoria Regina et Imperatrix. The reverse has a British column on the march, accompanied by native cavalry, an officer riding in the foreground; in the centre an elephant, carrying a mountain gun on his back, an infantry soldier marching in front, in the background a mountain, with a fortress on the ton; the word Afehanistan above, in the exergise the date, 1878-9-80 (14in. diameter.) The ribbon is green with red edges, 11in, wide. The name and regiment of the recipient are engraved on the edge in capital letters on medals given to British soldiers, and in running hand on those given to natives. The following were the six bars i-sued:

¹ Ali Muy I, 21st November, 1878 2. Perwir Kel II, and December, 1878. 3. Clarus I, 6th October, 1879. 4. Almed Khel, 19th April, 1889. 5. Kabul, 10th 23rd December, 1879, and 9th August, 1880. 6. Kandal II, 1st Seprember, 1879.

They are 13 in long by 15 in wide, with square ends, and have the name in the centre in raised capitals. They are fastened together by means of large, round headed rivets, and are attached to the medal by means of a straight class and switel

Only those troops who had previously received the medal for 1882 were given the bar for Suakin, 1884 lt, therefore, only appears, either separately or in conjunction with others, on the medal with the date, 1882, in the exergue

On the conclusion of the second Soudan War, in 1885 the same medal was issued to the troops and Second Naval Brigade, with five additional bars. The following War 1885 is the wording of the General Order

(1.) The Queen has been graciously pleased to signify her pleasure that a medal be granted to all Her Majesty's forces employed in the recent operations in the Soudan, in commemoration of their arduous labours in the ascent of the nver Nile, and their gallantry in the operations which ensued; and also for the operations in the Eastern Soudan, in the vicinity of Suakin (2) The medal will be similar in pattern to that already granted for service in Egypt and the Soudan. (3) Individuals already in possession of the decoration specified in paragraph 2 will only be eligible to receive such of the clasps specified hereafter as they may be entitled to. (4) All officers and soldiers who served south of Assouan on or before 7th March, 1885, will be held to be entitled to the medal, except those who are already in possession of it. (5) All officers and soldiers who were on duty at Suakin between 27th March, 1884, and 14th May, 1885, will also be entitled to the medal, except those already in possession of it. (6) Her Majesty has further approved of clasps being issued as follow: A clasp, insembed The Aile, 1884-5, to those officers and soldiers who served south of Assouan on or before March 7th, 1885. A clasp, insembed Alta Alea, to those officers and soldiers who took part in the action fought there on 17th Jan. 1885, under the late Major-General Sir H. Stewart, K.C.H. A clasp, inscribed Airlekan, to those officers and soldiers who took part in the action fought there on the toth Feb, 1885, under the late Major-General Karle, C.B., C.S.I. A clasp, inscribed Suakin, 1885, to those officers and soldiers who were engaged in the operations at Suakin between the 1st March and 14th May, 1885, both days inclume A clasp, inscribed Tofrek, to those officers and men who were actually present at the action fought there on the 22nd March, 1855

The ribbon was blue and white, like that for the two previous medals. No medals were issued with single bars for Tofrek, Abu Klea, or Kirbekan; as in the former case, all recipients were entitled to the bar for Suakin, 1885, and in the two latter for that for The Nile, 1884. The names and regiments, or ships, of the recipients were engraved on the edge of the reddl in capital letters. The medals were also given for all three campaigns, without bars, to those who had not been in action, but who wete in any way connected with the campaign; and officers of the bired transports and a few civilians, Luropean and native, also received it. There were, probably, more of these medals issued than for any previous campaign. The Australian contingent, and the Canadian boatmen hired to navigate the boats through the Nile rapids, were also presented with it.

The medal, without bar, and the star were issued to all officers and soldiers who served at, and to the South south of, Wady Halfa between November 30th, 1885. and January 11th, 1886, provided they had not already received them for any of the previous camprigns. This expedition included the Battle of Ginniss, for which no bar was given. A General Order, dated January 2nd, 1890, authorised a further issue of the Soudan medal with a bar, inscribed Soudan Gemaizah, 1888, to all troops who were landed at Sunkin before the action of Generalish on December 20th, 1888, and were there on that day; and that the same medal should be granted to all troops who were employed on the Nile at and south of Korosko on August and 1880; and that a bar, inscribed Toski, 1889, he given to all who were present at that action on August 3rd last. Those officers and men who had already received the Soudan medal received the new bars only.

medal received the new bars only.

In addition to the medal issued by our own Government, the Khedice of Egypt presented a greature of the control of the co

by a double band, upon which are the words, Egypt, 1882, above, and below, in Egyptian letters, Khedive of Egypt, 1299. On the reverse is a large raised circle, in which is the Khedive's monogram, T. M. surmounted by a crown and crescent and star. The ribbon was a broad one, of dark navy blue, 11in. wide. The decoration is bronze, and was issued without name. Many of the recipients had their name and regiment stamped or engraved on the reverse, at their own expense. The stars given for 1884 and 1885 were precisely the same, except that upon the band on the obverse the words are Egypt, 1884, or Egypt, 1884.6, with Khedive of Egypt, 1301, and Khedive of Egypt, 1301-4, respectively, in Arabic below. The 1884-5 star was not issued until some time after the English medal had been awarded, as originally it was not intended to give this decoration for the last campaign.

In 1890-91, a further issue of the bronze star was khedive's made to all troops engaged in the operations near star, 1885-9 Suakin in 1888-9, and on the Nile in 1889. The star is of similar pattern to those previously issued, but bears no date upon it. It was only given to those who had not received any of the stars issued for the other campaigns, and, fewer having been given, it is consequently the rarest of the series.

In October, 1893, a further issue of the Khedive's Tokar, 1890 star took place. The star was without a date on it, and was in every respect the same as the last issue. A bronze bar was, however, added above the usual suspender, on which in Arabic characters are the name and date of the action for which the star was granted, namely, Tokar, 1890. The officers and men of H.M.S. "Dolphin" and "Sandfly," who were engaged on transport duty, received the star, but no silver medal was given for this action. British officers serving in the Egyptian Army also received thus star. Those already in possession of any of the former issues received the bar only.

A large number of officers—above the rank of captain—were awarded the Order of the Medjadic officers of these campaigns, the class of the Order varying 1884. with the rank of the receivent Permission was subsequently granted to receive and wear this decoration, and also the various classes of the

This closes the description of the campaign medals and bars issued to the Services down to the end of July, 1898.

MEDALS AWARDED FOR MERI-TORIOUS SERVICE, &c.

Victoria Cross 1856

LARGE number of medals have been instituted as rewards for valour, long service, good conduct, &c, the principal one of which will be taken first, namely, the "Victoria Cross" It was instituted by Royal Warrant June 29th, 1856, and revised April

23rd, 1881. The Warrant begins:

Whereas we take into our Royal consideration that there exists no means of adequately rewarding the individual gallunt services, either of officers of the lower grades in our naval and military service, or of warrant and petty officers, searner, and mannes in our navy, and non commissioned officers and soldiers in our army, it is ordained that the cross shall only be awarded to those officers or men who served us in the presence of the enemy, and shall have then performed some signal act of valour or devotion to their country.

The idea originated with the late Prince Consort, and he is said to have designed the medal. Officers and men of the auxiliary and reserve forces are also eligible for the decoration. In the case of warrant officers, seamen, marines, non-commissioned officers, and privates, the cross carries with it an annuity of £10 per annum, and £5 extra per annum is added for each additional har.

In July, 1898, it was decided that, at the Secretary of State's discretion, a sum of £50 a year may be granted by way of pension in heu of the £10 which has accompanied the VC, since its institution.

The cross is of bronze, in shape Maltese, 13in. square, and is made from captured cannon. On the obverse, in the centre, is the British lion and crown; and below, on a scroll, the words For Valour. The reverse is plain, with a raised edge, and has a raised circle in the centre. A laureated clasp, 1 lin. wide, is attached for suspension, and a V below is connected to the cross by a small link. The name and regiment of the recipient are engraved upon the back of the clasp; and the date of the act of bravery is engraved inside the circle on the reverse of the medal. For each additional act of bravery a bar is given, upon which is engraved the date of the action. The cross is worn with a red ribbon, rlin. wide, by recipients in the army, and a blue ribbon by those in the navy.

Should a recipient of the V.C. at any subsequent date be convicted of any crime, or cowardice, the cross is forfeited, and in the case of a non-commissioned officer or private the pension is withdrawn.

The following is an alphabetical list of the winners since the institution, with the date when, and campaign in which, the action was performed; also the rank of the recipient on receipt of the cross, the ultimate rank attained, and whether alive or still serving.

The V.C. is the most highly-prized decoration a soldier can win, and a list of the recipients still drawing the annuity, and of such officers as are still living, is published quarterly in the Army List. The crosses are much prized by collectors, and what few come into the market fetch very high prices. They were purposely made of bronze, so that their intrinsic value should be as small as possible. The decoration is easily copied, and numbers of forged ones are met with, some of which it is very hard to detect, but as a rule they are rather smaller than the genuine medal. A medal For Meritorious Service was authorised

Meritorious on December, 19th, 1845, and a sum not exceeding Service f.2000 a year was set apart for distribution—in the form of annuities to sergeants recommended by the commander-in-chief-as rewards for distinguished or meritorious service. The annuity was not to exceed £20 a year in any case. On June 4th, 1853, the total sum to be distributed was increased to £4000 per annum, as a limit' By a Warrant dated December 4th, 1854, one sergeant of each cavalry and infantry regiment, and one from each battalion of Foot Guards, was to be selected for the award, for services in the Crimea The medal may not be worn with the Long Service and Good Conduct Medal, but may be with the Distinguished Conduct Medal

The obverse of the medal has a diademed head of the Queen, with the legend, Victoria Regina, and the date of issue in the exergue. The reverse has the inscription, For Meritorious Service, with a crown above, and surrounded with laurel-branches. The ribbon is crimson, and the name and regiment of the recipient are engraved on the edge of the medal (1 µm diumeter). The medal is also issued to scregeants of marines, and is worn with a blue ribbon 1 ¼m wide. On some of the earlier and later medals the date on the obverse is omitted.

The medal for Distinguished Conduct in the Field was instituted on December 4th, 1854, as a mirk of of the "Sovereign's sense of the distinguished service and gallant conduct in the field of the army then serving in the Crimea". It has been awarded in sub sequent compagns, and is only given to non commissioned officers and privates. The commanding officer of each regiment of cavalry had the right to select one sergeant, two corporals, and four privates for the medal, and the commanding officer of each infantry regiment could select one sergeant, four corporals, and ten privates. A gratuity was also given with the medal—£15 to sergeants £10 to corporals and £5 to privates. The money was put into the regimental savings bank and remained at interest until the discharge of the soldier, when it became his private property. In September, 1862, the gratuity was withdrawn, and in February, 1881, a bar was sunctioned to be added in cases where a recipient of the medal further distinguished himself

The obverse of the medal has the royal arms of the United Kingdom quartered on a shield, and sup ported by a military trophy, consisting of cannons, arms, cannon balls, and helmets, like the Victorian Long Service Medal, but the reverse is inscribed, For Distinguished Conduct in the Field A scrollclasp is attached to the medal for suspension (1 411 diameter) The ribbon is crimson with a blue stripe down the centre, 14in wide, and in the earlier issues the recipient's name, rank, and regiment are indented round the edge of the medal. In the more recent issues they are engraved, and, in addition, have the date of the action for which the medal was awarded. The medal may be worn with the Meritorious Service or the Long Service and Good Conduct Medals A medal For Conspicuous Gallantry was authorised conup for issue to the navy on August 13th, 1855 for the Gardine Crimean War only it was given to petty officers who distinguished themselves in action. It was given in the proportion of eight to petty officers, sergeants, or corporals of marines, and ten to sailors or privates of marines, for every thousand men engaged Gratuities of £15 £10, and £5 were also given, the total not to exceed £4000 per annum. By an Order of Council dated July 7th, 1874, the medal was again instituted, and the amounts of the annuities were altered to £20 for chief and first class petty officers of the navy and sergeants of the Royal Marines, provided the amount authorised from time to time for such annuities by the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury is not exceeded. The medal is now available for any war in which the navy or marines may be engaged

The obverse has a diademed head of the Queen, with Victoria Regina above. The reverse is inscribed, in raised letters, For Conspicuous Gallantry, a crown above, and the whole surrounded by olive-branches (14m diameter). The ribbon is blue with a white stripe down the ceotre, 1½m wide. In the later medals the name and rank of the recipient, and the date of the action, are engraved on the edge in capital letters.

The earlier medals were made from the Meritorious Service Medal, with the last two words on the reverse erased, and Conspicuous Gallantry engraved instead These medals have a scroll clasp for suspension, whilst those issued since 1874 have a straight clasp This medal may be worn with the Victoria Cross Colonel Gaskell has in his collection two extraordinary and unique groups one consisting of the Victoria Cross, Conspicuous Gallantry medal (both dated July 15th and August 16th, 1855), Legion of Honour, Sardinian war medal, one bar ' Sebastopol,' Baltic, two bar Chioa (Fatshan, 1857, and Canton, 1857), and the Turkish Crimean medal, eight medals in all, belonging to John Shepherd, Boatswain, HMS "St Jean D'Acre", and the other consisting of TWO Conspicuous Gallantry medals (dated October 14th, 1855, and November 6th, 1855. respectively), three bar Grimea (Inkermann, Sebastopol, and Azoff), Legion of Honour, and the Turkish Crimean medal, belonging to David Barry, A.B., H M S "Cracker" The latter is theonly instance known of two of these medals being given to one mao

The last four medals are eagerly sought for by collectors, and but few are met with in the open market. When they do appear at sales, they invariably bring very high prices.

This completes what may be called the "Fighting Medals." The next series are—with the exception of the East India Company's Meritorious Service Medal—bestowed in times of peace as well as in war. They are, however, none the less interesting, and are highly prized by the recipients.

The silver medal for Long Service and Good

Armylone Conduct was first instituted on July 30th, 1830, by

Medals King William IV., for non-commissioned officers and beering King William IV., for non-commissioned officers and men who had been discharged in receipt of gratuities.

The recipient had to serve twenty-one years in the infantry or twenty-four years in the cavalry.

The obverse has a military trophy, with an oval shield in the centre charged with the royal arms, and a smaller shield in the centre bearing the arms of Hanover. The reverse has the inscription, For Long Service and Good Conduct (1'4in. diameter). The suspender for this medal was a small steel die, to which was attached a steel loop. The ribbon was crimson, 12in. wide, and the name and regiment of the recipient, and the date of discharge, were indented in larre letters on the edge of the medal.

A small silver medal was given by King William IV.

A gold cross was issued on March 2nd, 1837, to the Hanoverian troops for twenty-five years' service It is a Maltese cross, and has on the obverse, in the centre on a raised circle, a crown with W R IV In the centre of the reverse are the figures, XIV in Roman characters The ribbon is red with blue edges, the same as the English Waterloo ribban

In the earlier years of Queen Victoria's reign the Long Service Medal, as above described, was issued Army Long to the troops, with the exception of the Hanoverian Media 1837 shield which was left out of the centre of the royal arms Hanover having ceased to be under the control of this country The suspender ribbon, and inscriptions on the edge of the medals, remained the same. The obverse of this medal and of that for Distinguished Conduct (described on page 161), are exactly the same

Later on, or about 1851, the original steel suspender was replaced by a silver clasp similar to that made for, and issued with, the Sutley Medals, and the letters of the inscription on the obverse were slightly smaller. The date also was omitted on the edge of the medal

On January 16th, 1860, the conditions of issue were revised, and the medal was granted to soldiers who Army Long had fulfilled the necessary conditions, but no gratuities Needs iso. were given. No soldier is now entitled to the medal unless he has specially distinguished himself, or has at least three Good Conduct Badges The medal and ribbon are still the same in design and size, but since 1874 the letters round the edge have been engraved instead of punched, and are filled up with a black enamel

By a Royal Warrant, dated December 27th 1870, these medals were granted to non-commissioned

Army Long officers and soldiers on discharge, with a gratuity Medal, 1870, not exceeding £5 if they had served eighteen years with an irreproachable character. It is now given, with or without a gratuity, according to the decision of the War Office authorities.

A medal for similar services was granted to the Naval Long navy by King William IV., on August 24th, 1831; Service Medal, 1831 it was also given to the marines. The recipients were selected by the captains of the ships, and in addition to the medal gratuities were granted according to their rating. On the obverse are an anchor and a crown, surrounded by a wreath of oak. On the reverse, the recipient's name, rating, ship, and number of years' service are engraved, surrounded by a circle, around which are inscribed the words, For Long Service and Good Conduct. (1 3in. diameter). The ribbon is dark blue.

After the accession of Queen Victoria the medal Naval Long was superseded by one having a diademed head of Medal, 1848 Her Majesty on the obverse, surrounded by the legend, Victoria Regina. Upon the reverse is a lineof-battleship at anchor, surrounded by a circle of rope, tied in a reef-knot at the bottom. Around it are the words, For Long Service and Good Conduct. (1'4in. diameter.) The recipient's name, rating, ship, number of years' service, and the date, are engraved on the edge of the medal. The ribbon is dark blue with white edges, 11in. wide; and on the earlier issues the clasp and ribbon are nearly half as wide again as those on the later medals.

> Some of the earlier medals had the date 1848 below the Queen's head on the obverse.

In the Author's collection there was a variety of this medal. It was much smaller than that previously described, and had on the obverse a small bust of the Oueen, surrounded by Victoria Regina. The reverse had a three-masted ship to the left, surrounded by the legend, For Long Service and Good Conduct. The recipient's name was engraved on the edge. It is probably one of the first issue of the Victorian medal and was no doubt superseded by the present issue.

The Governor-General of India instituted a Long Service Medal for the East India Company's troops East India on May 20th, 1848. The observe is very similar to for Long Services Services that of the English medal, only instead of an oval 1848 (Arm 5) shield charged with the royal arms, one bearing those of the East India Company is substituted. On the reverse, the words For Long Service and Good Conduct are engraved in a circle around the outside; whilst inside the ring so formed, the name, rank, and regiment of the recipient are engraved. (1.4in. diameter.) The suspender was the same as that issued with the Sutlei and Punjab Medals, and the ribbon is crimson, 11in, wide,

At the same time a medal was issued to the same troops for meritorious service. On the obverse is a Fast India diademed head of the Queeo, with the legend, Victoria for Mental on Service. Regina, above, and the date, 1848, below. Upon the 1818 (Arm) reverse are the arms of the Honourable East India Company, and surrounding it, in a circle, are the words, For Meritorious Service. The recipient's name, rank, and regiment, are engraved on the edge of the medal, in Italian ruoning-hand, (1'4in, diameter.) The suspender is of the same type as that of the previous medal, and the ribbon is also crimson, 11io. wide, These medals were issued notil 1873, when they were discontinued, and those of the English type substituted.

A medal was struck for the Company's navy, but Fast Inda was not distributed, and so the navy never received of the company of the company of the navy never received of Navi reward for long service. A few were issued by the structure of the army, and Bombay Governments by mistake to the army, and one in Mr Morten's collection is inscribed around the edge. Sergt W Dalton, and Battery Artillery, 9th Feb, 1859. The obverse bears a diademed head of the Queen, with Victoria Regina above. The reverse has, For Long Service and Good Conduct, with a crown above and an anchor below. The whole is surrounded by oak branches. The medal was worn with a crowson.

In 1842, the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty and issued a medal as a reward "to engineers of the first good conduct and ability, deserve some special mark of notice" It is an extremely rare medal as only six were awarded, and the issue was discontinued in 1847, when engineers were raised to the rank of warrant officers. A two masted paddle-steamer is shown on the obverse, with a trident below, in the exergue. On the reverse are inscribed in a circle, the words, For Ability and Good Conduct, inside which the name and rank of the recipient are en graved, with a crown above and an anchor below (1411 diameter). The ribbon was dark blue with white edges.

In 1870, a silver medal and grituity of £20 were

Best Shot instituted to be given annually to the best shot in the
in a ramy The obverse bears the same bust of the Queen 1870, as the Ashantee Medal, and has the same legend The reverse which was designed by E J Poynter, A R A, has a figure of Victory, standing on a dais, holding a horn in her left hand, and crowning an ancient warrior with a wreath of laurel. He is armed with a bow, and holds a shield in which are three arrows. (1-4 in. diameter.) The ribbon is red. with two narrow black stripes and a white stripe near each edge, 14 in. wide; the suspender is a straight clasp. The medal was originally issued in bronze, and was worn on the right breast. The issue was discontinued in 1883. Only sixteen were given.

A medal is also given annually to the best shot among the native soldiers in India. The obverse has Pert Shot, a head of the Queen similar to that on the medal Area lastly described, but with the legend, Victoria Queen; and on the reverse, Victory, holding in her right hand a laurel-wreath, and in her left a Union Jack, at the foot of which is a shield inseribed, Best Shot of the Native Armics of India. Teops are firing in the background, and there are mountains in the distance. (16in. diameter.) The ribbon is the same as that for the forecoing medal.

Another very rare medal, or badge, given to native troops for shooting, is in the shape of a native soldier kneeling and taking aim. On the reverse is engraved, Given by Lord F. Fitzelarence. It was worn suspended by a ring to a dark blue ribbon.

Meritorious Service (India)—In 1890, two medals were issued by the Government of India to stationary native troops, one for Meritorious Service and the beduritra other for Long Service and Good Conduct. Obverse, the Queen's head, crowned and veiled, similar to that on the Egyptian medals, but surrounded by the inscription, Kaizar-i-Hind. Reverse: In the centre, India, surrounded by a palm-wreath. Outside the wreath. For Meritorious Service, the whole being surrounded by a wreath of lotus-flowers. (1'4in. diameter.)

These medals are only given to native Indian troops, and are worn with a erimson ribbon, 1½in. wide. The name is engraved on the edge in ordinary running-hand. The Author is indebted to Lieutenant-Colonel A. N. Baird, Royal Engineers, for the description of these medals.

Tamper 1st Foot, instituted a society in India called "The Media's Soldiers' Indian Total Abstinence Association," and the site site of the society in India called "The Media's Soldiers' Indian Total Abstinence Association," and the site site of many rank, European or native, for total abstinence. The medals are worn on the right breast, usually suspended from a light blue ribbon. Medals of various designs are given, according to the number of years the recipient has been a total abstainer; bars inseribed with the word Fidelity, &c., are sometimes added.

(1) One medal, worn with a pale yellow ribbon with red edges, is lozenge-shaped, and has on one side a four-pointed star, and in the centre, within a circle, a lion couchant, the word India below. On the other side is a sword, round which is entwined a ribbon inscribed, Watch and be Sober. Along the outside of the medal, on a lozenge-shaped border, are the words, The Soldiers' Total Abstinence Association.

(2) The next is round, and has on the obverse a palm-tree, under which are two native women with water-pots, one sitting and the other standing. Round them is the legend, Total Abstinence Medal: India. The reverse is inscribed, Watch and be Sober, and around the outside are the words, Total Abstinence Association, formed 1862.

This medal is worn for the first year, and for the second year a clasp, inscribed Fidelity, is added. For the third year the lozenge-shaped medal is substituted, and a clasp, inscribed Excelsior, is added for the fourth year. There are various other clasps, added at subsequent stages, inscribed, Watch and be Sober: Onward. &c.

(3) Another medal is oval in form, and has on one side a monogram—S.T.A.—surrounded by olivebranches. On a raised border round the outside is the legend, The Association Medal for Fidelity: India. On the reverse is a scroll inscribed, Watch and be Sober, and around the outside, The Soldiers' Total Abstinence Association; the date, 1862, is below, in Roman numerals.

(4) The next is a very handsome medal, and is in the form of a star of four double points, with radiations between the four main members. In the centre is a fine raised figure of St. George and the Dragon, and on an encircling band are the words, The Soldiers, Total Abstinence Association; India below. On the reverse, in a depressed centre, is a sword, round which is twined a scroll inscribed, Watch and be Sober; and on a raised garter round the outside is the legend, For Five Years' Fidelity. A crown and ring are attached for suspension.

These medals have recently been replaced by those of the Army Temperance Association.

(5) Another medal is in the shape of a large Maltese cross, and was instituted during the late Afghan War.

On a garter in the eentre of the obverse is inscribed, local or Grand Lodge of India, and inside the circle, Afghan local or istan, 1878-9 80 On each limb of the cross is a ("Soldiers' Total Abstinence Society"). The reverse is plain A crown and ring are provided for suspension from a pink ribbon with blue edges.

(7) In 1875, an eight-pointed silver star was issued having on the centre of the obverse, on a raised eirele, the words India's Hope, engraved and in the centre a monogram, TAS Reverse Plain A ring for suspension Ribbon, light blue

(8) NAVAL TEMPERANCE MEDAL — Obverse A Navat three-masted ship, surrounded by the legend, Royal Medal. Naval Branch National Temperance League Reverse A laurel-wreath, within which are the words, Instituted on board HMS Reindeer, July, 1868 A small, round, silver medal

(9) Another medal was assued during the recent campaign in Burnah. It is in the shape of a Maltese cross, with a raised garter in the centre, on which is inscribed, in raised letters, Grand Lodge of India—Fidelity Inside the garter the recipient's name is engraved. On each of the arms of the cross is one of the four letters, I. O. G. T. It is suspended from a bar inscribed, Burmah. The reverse is plain, and a pin, instead of a ribbon, is used for attaching it to the coat.

(10) A cross, with balls at the eight points. In the centre an elephant; below, on a label, India; surrounded by a band inscribed, The Soldiers' Total Abstinence Association, with rays between the arms of the cross. Silver, with ring for suspension.

(11) An eight-pointed silver star, surmounted by a crown. In the centre a Maltese cross, surrounded by a garter, on which is inscribed, Church of England. T. S. Silver. Ribbon, blue. Reverse: Plain, with recipient's name engraved.

REGIMENTAL MEDALS.

E now come to a very interesting senes of medals, known amongst collectors as 'Regimental Medals" They are of much greater antiquity than the majority of those described in the foregoing pages, but for purposes of reference it has been thought better to class them in regimental order instead of chronologically They were not issued by the Government, but were generally presented by the officers of the regiments, at their own expense, to non commissioned officers and men for bravery, long service, temperance, &c, and were, as a rule, discontinued when the Long Service Medal was instituted, in 1830 There may, possibly, be many more than are here described, but the following is a list of those known to the Author in collection up to date They were not uniformly of silver some were of pewter, some of copper, and others of gold The metal will be noted with the descriptions of the niedals HOUSEHOLD CAVALRY. - Obverse, a cavalry man

MILITIA, YEOMANRY, AND VOLUNTEER MEDALS.

I the time that this country was threatened with a French invasion a large number of Volunteer regiments started into existence. They have long since disappeared, as they were mostly disbanded at the time of Napoleon's banishment to St. Helena. In addition to the Militia which was re-organised by King George III. in 1786, Lord Chatham had established, in 1761, a force of Yeomanty, and in 1778 a Volunteer force sprang into existence, and became an integral part in national defence. In that year, Ireland being threatened with invasion by France and Spain, a levy of 40,000 Protestants was made by the gentry in the North. At a later date when invasion by Napoleon I. seemed imminent, patriotic men throughout the whole country were enrolled en masse into the ranks of the Volunteers, Corps of various arms were formed in almost every town and district, more particularly for the protection of their own immediate neighbourhood. Members were generally armed, equipped, and accoutred at their own personal expense

Between 1704 and 1804 successive Acts of Parlia ment were passed, providing for the administration and discipline of the Volunteer force, which, in 1805, amounted to 429,165 men, 70 000 of whom were lrish Many of the Yeomann, or Volunteer Cavalry Corps, remain to this day Medals were bestowed by the officers upon certain individuals in each regiment, as rewards for ment, good conduct, good shooting, &c, and the dates of issue mostly range from 1779 to 1815 Many of the medals are en graved, and the shapes and designs vary. It is almost impossible to give a complete list of all that were issued, as of many no description can be found. They form a very interesting and valuable series and mark an important epoch in the listory of our country, and are almost the only relics now remaining of these old corps For convenience of reference they will be arranged in Alphabetical order instead of chronologically. The Author is greatly indebted to Mr R Day, rsh, for the use of his valuable collection of notes respecting the Irish Volunteers

In Colonel Gaskell's collection. lower, the tree is higher, and the figure of the Indian is smaller than in the preceding one. It is I 10 in diameter.

In recent years a brass medal was found on the brittlefield at Point Pleasant, Va where an engagement took place in 1774, having on the obverse the hust of King George I facing right, draped and laureated, and surrounded by the legend, George King of Great Britain The reverse bears the figure of an Indian on the right, aiming at a deer on a hill on the left above which is a tree surrounded by flowers and sirubs, above which is the sun This medal, like the foregoing, has a loop for suspension It is 11m diameter.

A somewhat similar medal was found at Tunkhannock, Pa, in 1837, with a similar bust and legend, surrounded by a fillet of twelve laurel-leaves. The reverse shows a figure of an Indian throwing a spear at a deer on the left, with the sun above (11/2 in diameter).

The next one was issued by George II, and bears II his bust on the obverse, facing left He is in armour, and wears a laurel wreath, and is surrounded by the legend Georgius II DG Mag Br Fr et

Hib Rev The reverse bears the representation of an Indian shooting at a deer on the right beneath a tree It is of brass (111n diameter), and was found in 1865 at Lackawanna, Pa

In 1753, Sir Danvers Osborne, Governor of New York, brought from England thirty siker medals for presentation to the chiefs of the Six Nations The medals were cast and chased, and were fitted with loops and rings for suspension, and were worn with a broad watered silk scarlet ribbon. They were 15th drumeter. The obverse bore the bust of the King facing left, surrounded by the legend Georgius II DG Mag. Bri. Fin. et. H. Rev. FD. Reverse, the royal arms and supporters, with garter and motto. Dieu et mon droit.

In 1757, the dies for a medal were engraved by one Duffield, of Philadelphia to be presented to the North-American Indians by the Friendly Association for Regaining and Preserving Peace with the Indians by Pacific Means. They were struck in silver, copper, and pewter, and were 13in in diameter. The obverse bears a bust of the King froing left, with laurel wrenth and armour, and surmounted by the legend, Georgius II Det Gratia. On the recree are shown a white man and an Indian sitting on the ground on either side of a fire, the former offering a pipe of peace to the latter. On the right, beside the man, is a tree, and on the left, above the Indian, the sun is shown. In the recrept is the date, 1757, and the whole is surrounded by the inscription, Let us look to the Most High, Who blisted our fathers will peace. The medals were pierced for rings for suspension

In Betts' "American Colonial History," in a chapter on the historical medals of America during the period of the inter-colonial wars, three medals are mentioned as liaving been given by the British Government to members of the native tribes who assisted at the capture of Montreal in 1760. The obverse bears a representation of a fortified town with five spires and five bastions and with a river in front. On the right is a fort, on which is a flag flying, bearing St George's Cross above, Montreal, in the exergue, DCF (DC Feeit?) Reverse, engraved across the centre, Onondagos, above, in running type, Tekahon Waghse. The obverse is cast and chased, and a loop is attached to the inedal for suspension. The medal is silver, and is 143 in diameter.

The second one has exactly the same obverse, but the reverse is engraved, Madoghil Molitchans. It is the same size as the former, and is exactly like it in other respects

The third one mentioned is 211 in diameter, with the same obverse as the other two, and similar in other respects, but the reverse is engraved, Timbalkel, Mohickans

We now come to the medals given by King George III These medals were struck for distribution amongst the Indian chiefs at the close of the French and Indian wars. The obserse bears a youthful bust of the King to the right in armour, and wearing the ribbon of the Garter, the hair in a double curl over the ear. Seven rivets are shown on the front of the breast plate. Reverse, the royal urms and supporters in high relief, the quarterings on the shield being those of England Scotland, Ireland, and Hanover. The medal is slver, and is 3½in diameter. These meduls vary somewhat in design.

so it is evident that more than one die was made In one of them the Kings hair is in a single curl over the ear, and in this medal a crack is observable in the die, extending across the shoulder and half-way towards the I in the word Georgius of the inscription In another eight rivets are shown on the breast plate, and on the reverse the hons paw touches the I in Hone in the inscription on the Garter surrounding the shield, whereas in another it touches the N They also vary in size by in some being 31in, and others 3in and 3in diameter Specimens have been found in silver, silver gilt, and also in pewter The date of issue is somewhat hard to fix, but it is ingemously settled in the before mentioned work by Mr Betts in this way The next medal described was struck as a gift to friendly Indians, who sent an address of congratulation to the King upon his marriage. As the marriage took place on September 8th, 1761, and as several months must have elapsed before the delivery of the address, and as all the reverses of the medals are the same the year 1762 was probably the date of issue Obverse bust of the King to the right, and that of Queen Charlotte to the lest, facing each other, above them is a curtain tied back with cords and tassels, and falling midway between the heads, no legend Reverse, similar to the previous medal described, but with the shield in much lower relief, the hon and unicorn being much thinner and more erect, and the whole design larger in proportion to the size of the medal It is thin. diameter, and pierced for suspension

Another medal having exactly the same design on the reverse, has on the obverse a bust of the King to the right, in armour, and surmounted by the inscription, Georgius III Det Gratia, but with only six rivets on the front of the breast-plate It is of the same diameter as the previous medal described

In 1764, another medal was issued, having on the obverse a bust of the King, in armour, to the right surmounted by the inscription, Georgius III DG M. Bit Iran et Hib Rev FD The reverse bears a representation of an Indian and a white man, both seated, the former holding a pipe towards the latter

In the background a city and harbour A loop is fixed to the medal formed by a pipe and eagle's wing, crossed Above is the inscription, Happy while united, and, in the exergue, the date, 1764 Varieties of medals of this design exist, one has a similar bust of the King but, in addition, laureated, and wearing the ribbon of the Order of the Garter, and in the inscription the N is left out in Fran The reverse of this medal is slightly different Although the legend and exergue are the same, in addition to the figures before-mentioned, there is on the right a house on a rocky point, and also three ships are shown in the harbour in full sail. The Indian also holds his pipe in the left hand, and grasps with his right the white man's hand. Behind him are a tree and a building. This is a cast, silver medal (21/8)in diameter) Another has a similar bust of the King on the obverse, but without a wreath, and with the hair tied behind with a long ribbon. The reverse is similar, but no ships are shown, neither is there a date in the exergue Flus medal is 2 in diameter, and is illustrated in Captain Tancred's well-known book on medals

Another one has a similar bust of the King, laureated, but wearing a wig tied in a bow legend is the same as in the preceding medals. The reverse is also similar, but there are several houses shown, and only two ships on the sea. This medal is 21 in diameter, and was found in a grave at old Fort I ondon in October, 1875. It is a silver struck medal.

The next medal was probably issued at the close of the French and Indian War in 1765. One of them was recently taken from the grave of Otussa (son of the eelebrated Indian Chief Pontrie) on Presque Isle, at the mouth of the Shawnee river. The obverse bears an armoured bust of the King to the right, wearing the ribbon of the Garter, and surmounted by the legend, Georgius III Des Gratia. The reverse represents the British hon lying under a tree on the left behind which are a church and two houses. A snarling wolf is on the right (emblematic of France), behind which are trees and shrubs. The medal is silver (22in diameter)

During the Resolutionary War the British Government frequently employed Indians in conjunction with our own troops and notably in 1777 under Burgoyne in his march on Albany, &c \times media supposed to have been issued in 1777 or 1778, as a reward to the chiefs, has on the obverse a 'voung' bust of the King in armour, to the right, with hair tied behind, and wearing the ribbon of the Order of the Garter | Above is the legend, Georgius III Dei Grutti | The reverse has the royal arms and supporters, surmounted his a crown | Upon a ribbon below, Due et mon der it | Behind the ribbon a rose and thistle, two leaves appearing on each stem a'

the ribbon The quartering of the arms shows England impaling Scotland in the first France in the second, Iteland in the third, and Hanover in the fourth (2gm diameter) Silver, with a loop for suspension The motto has a full stop between each word

The next medal has a similar obverse, and the design of the reverse is much the same as the preceding, but the motitoes are not punctuated. The word Qui is partly concealed by the crown, and the letters "Y" and "P" are hidden by the leg of the unicorn Four leaves also appear on each stem above the ribbon, and the quarterings of the shield are different, England being in the first and fourth, Scotland in the second, and Ireland in the third. The arms of Hanover, with a crown, are borne as a scutcheon of pretence. It is silver (2 in diameter), and has an ornamental loop for suspension. The fleur de lys of France were removed by Royal Proclamation from the shield of Great Britain in 1801, so that this medal was issued after that date. On April 30th, 1896, there was sold in New York.

On April 30th, 1899, there was sold in New York a silver medal (3m diameter), given by the Hudson's Bay Company is a means "of fostering friendly relations with the Indian chiefs". The obverse bears the bust of the King to the left, in armour, by "Kuchler," whose initials are shown beneath the shoulder, surrounded by the legend, Georgius III D. G. Brittamarum Rex. fid. def. &c. On the reverse are the arms of the Hudson's Bay Company, with two deer as supporters, below a scroll, with the motto, Pro Pelle cutem. The medal was somewhat worn, and was pierced for suspension It has no date, so that the year of issue cannot be fixed.

In 1814, silver and bronze medals were issued, having on the obverse an "old" bust of the King to the right, and wearing the robes and collar of the Order of the Garter, and surrounded by the legend, Georgius III. Dei Gratia Brittaniarum Rex. F. D. The reverse has the royal arms of the period with supporters, and below the date, 1814. An ornamental loop was fitted for suspension, and the medals were 3in. diameter.

The Author has been unable to trace any medals given to the Indians by either of the succeeding sovereigns, George IV. or William IV.; but in 1840 one was issued by Queen Victoria, having on the obverse the bust of the Queen to the left, wearing a diadem, and surrounded by the legend, Victoria Dei Gratia Brittaniarum Regina F.D. The reverse bears the royal arms and motto, with the date, 1840, in the exergue. The medal is silver (3in. diameter), with a ring for suspension.

An exactly similar medal to the above, but 18in. diameter, was issued at the same time for services rendered in 1837.

In 1875, a medal was issued by the Canadian Government to Indian chiefs who entered into certain agreements with the Governor. The obverse bears a somewhat similar bust of the Queen as that on the New Zealand medal. On one side is the word Victoria, and on the other Regina. The obverse represents a British field officer on the left, clasping the hand of an Indian chief on the right; behind the officer is the sun just appearing above the horizon, and behind the Indian is an encampment. Above are the words, Indian Treaty No. —, and below, 187—, leaving the number and date of the treaty to be subsequently filled in. The medal is silver (3in. diameter), and has a loop for suspension.

These medals were much valued by the natives who received them, and many references to them are found in records of travel amongst the Indian tribes, Even to this day many of them are worn by the descendants of the original recipients

In a recently published account of Reil's Rebellion, in 1885, Major-General Strange, describing the battle of Frog Lake on May 24th, says

[&]quot;The fallen Indian was the Chief He wore the Queen's medal, supplied by the Canadian Government, an ornament about the size of an agricultural trophy for a prize pig These medals are solid silver, and much valued by the chiefs, who hand them down from father to son. Some of them bear the image and superscription of good King George III. The next morning, on passing the spot where he fell, I noticed the tall nthletic figure of the dusky warrior as he lay like a bronze statue. He had lost his scalp, and his medal?

BRITISH ORDERS.

S a large number of the following Orders are worn by officers of the army and navy—having in many cases been given for distinguished services—a brief description of each of them is quite within the range of this book. The first in order of importance is

THE MOST NOBLE ORDER OF THE GARTER (KG) instituted by King Edward III, in 1348. There are the twenty six Kinghts, including the Sovereign and the Prince of Wales. The garter is of dark blue velvet, embroidered in gold, with the motto, Hone soit que embroidered in gold, with the motto, Honi soil qui mail jenise, the buckle and clasp are gold, and it has a gold embroidered edge. The Queen wears it on the left arm above the elbow, and the Knights on the left leg, below the knee. The collar is of gold, and was added by King Henry VII. It weighs 36oz, and consists of twenty six buckled garters, and alternately knots of cords. The garters encircle alternately a red rose charged with a white one, and a white rose charged with a red one. "The George' is worn as a pendant to the collar, and is a figure of St George and the Dragon in coloured enamels. The lesser George—similar to the above, but encircled by a buckled garter, forming an oval—is worn from the dark blue ribbon of the Order, suspended from the left shoulder. The star is of silver, with eight radiated points, in the centre is the cross of St. George in red enamel, on a white background, it is encircled by a blue enamelled garter and motto, in silver letters, and is worn on the left breast.

THE MOST NOBLE AND MOST ANCIENT ORDER OF The Thirtle THE THISTLE (OF SCOTLAND) (KT) the origin of which is unknown, was revived, in 1540, by King Inmes V of Scotland The Order consists of the Sovereign and sixteen Knights The collar is of gold, and consists of sixteen thistles alternating with the same number of sprigs of rue-four in each group, interlaced, they are all enamelled in proper colours The badge is a gold, eight-pointed star, with an enamelled figure of St Andrew bearing a silver cross, it is worn as a pendant to the collar Another badge is similar in design to the above, but is surrounded by an oval band charged with the motto of the Order, Nemo me impune lacessit It is worn depending from a broad, dark green ribbon which crosses the left shoulder The star is silver, with rays in the form of a St Andrew's cross and has rave issuing Irom between the limbs in the form of a lozenge, in the centre, on a gold background is a thistle, enamelled in proper colours, surrounded by a dark green band charged with the motto in gold letters

THE MOST ILLUSTRIOUS ORDER OF ST PATRICK
St Patrick (KP) was instituted by George III, in 1783, and consists of the Sovereign, the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and twenty-two Knights The collar is of gold, and consists of six harps and five red and white roses, enamelled, tied together with knots of gold The badge is of go'd, and is oval in form. It is pendent from the cell'at by a harp, and has the cross of St Patrick, with a shamreck in the centre, on each leaf of which is a gold imperial crown, the whole is surrounded by a light blue enamelled eircle bearing the motto, Q_a is Sefarch i, and the date, MDCCLAXXIII The star is worn on the left side, and is similar to the badge in design, but the surrounding circle is round instead of oval, and is surrounded by an eight pointed radiating silver star.

THE MOST HONOLRABLE ORDER OF THE BATH WIS first instituted by King Henry IV, in 1390 and revived The Baid by King George I, in 1725. The Civil Orders were added in 1847. The Order consists of three classes (1) Kinghts Grand Cross (GCB). Fifty Military

Knights and twenty-five Civil Knights

(2) Knight Commanders (KCB) 125 Military and eighty Civil Knights
(3) Companions (CB) 690 Military and 250 Civil

Lnights

The Military Order is only conferred on officers of or above, the rank of major in the army or communder in the navy, and only for services against the enemy. The collar is of gold, and weight good. It consists of nine imperial erowns, and eight groups of rose sham rock, and thistle, enamelled in proper colours, issuing from a sceptre and linked together with seventeen white enamelled knots, it has the bridge for a pendant. The bridge is a gold cross of eight points enamelled white, and in each angle is a gold ton. In the centre are a rose, shamrock, and thistle, issuing from a sceptre, between three imperial erowns, and surrounded by a red enamelled circle, charged with the motto, in gold letters. Tria juncta in jun. The circle is surrounded by two laurel branches, and below is a blue, enamelled scroll, bearing the motto Ich dien, in gold letters

The KCB is worn by a red ribbon round the neck, and the CB by a red ribbon on the left breast. The GCB star is a gold Maltese cross, mounted on a silver, flaming star in the centre of the cross is the motto, on a red, enamelled circle, and inside it are three imperial crowns. The errcle is surrounded by an olive wreath. On the lower limb of the cross is the motto, Ich dien, in gold letters on a blue, enamelled scroll. On the KCB star the Maltese cross is omitted, and the star itself is in the form of a silver cross patter. The CB merely has the cross as badge which does not, like the others, carry the honour of knighthood with it.

The CB badge is 14 n square, and weighs 14870z, the KCB badge is 24 n square, and weighs 2 0320z, and the GCB is 34 in square, and weighs 3 1100z In accordance with a recent order these are now given in silver gilt instead of pure gold

The stars granted in the earlier part of the century vary in size, as formerly the Knights had to buy their own, and they were made to suit their individual ideas

The Civil Orders, which are occasionally bestowed on officers for services rendered in times of peace, consist of a badge and star. The badge is ovil, and made of gold, in the centre is the device of the Order, in filagree work, surrounded by the garter charged with the motto. The badge of all three classes is alike, only virying in size.

The Civil G.C.B. star has eight rays, and in the centre three crowns on a white ground, surrounded by the motto, on a red enamelled ground. The K.C.B. Civil star is the same as that of the Military Order, only omitting the laurel-wreath and the motto.

The old badges of the Military Order, previous to 1815, of which there was only one class, were exactly the same as those instituted for the Civil Orders in 1847. The only way to distinguish between the old Military, and the modern Civil badges is by the "hall-mark," All those bearing a hall-mark, previous to 1815, are obviously Military badges. The gold and enamelled Military cross was instituted in 1815.

THE MOST EXALTED ORDER OF THE STAR OF INDIA, instituted by Queen Victoria in 1861, consists stared of the Sovereign, the Viceroy of India, and twentyfive Knights. It is divided into three classes, and was enlarged in 1866, 1875, and 1876 :

(1) Knights Grand Commanders (G.C.S.I.): Thirty

members-eighteen native and twelve European. (2) Knights Commanders (K.C.S.I.); Seventy-two members.

(3) Companions (C.S.I.); 1.44 members.

The collar is of gold, and is composed of roses, lotusflowers, and palm-branches; the roses are alternately red and white, and the other emblems are enamelled in proper colours; in the centre is the imperial crown, from which the badge depends. The badge consists of a brilliant star of five points, to which is suspended an oval, cameo, profile bust of the Queen. Encircling it, on light blue enamel, is the motto. Heaven's Light our Guide, in gold letters. 'The investment badge is similar in design to the above, but the star, the setting of the cameo, and the motto, are all of diamonds It is worn with a sky-blue ribbon with narrow, white edges The star is of diamonds, five pointed, and on a gold field, radiated It is surrounded by a light blue enamelled circle, charged with the motto in diamonds, the whole is encircled by wavy rays of gold

Army Long Service and Good Conduct, Nawy Long Identity Service and Good Conduct Medals, and the Indian Meritorious Service, and Long Service and Good Conduct Medals of 1890 described on pp. 160, 161, 162, 163 165, 166, 160, and 170, were altered. The effigy of the King was substituted for that of the late

Queen, or the trophy of arms previously used, and the inscription was altered to Edward VII Rex Imperator On the Indian medals the inscription is Edward VII Kaisar i hind No change was made in the suspenders or mounts except that the clamp which fastens the clasp to the medal is flowered instead of plain as formerly

On June 18th, 1901 the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty presented a memorial to the Privy Council praying that some means of recognising distinguished service before the enemy be granted to Warrant Officers, or Subordinate Officers of His Majesty's Fleet, who, by reason of not holding a commission in the Royal Navy, are not eligible for appointment to any existing Order or Decoration

On June 28th, 1901, His Majesty sanctioned the institution of a decoration to be designated the Conspicuous Service Cross, and to carry the right with it for the recipient to have the letters CSC appended to his name

It is awarded for meritorious or distinguished services before the enemy, performed by Warrant Officers, or by Subordinate Officers, or acting Warrant Officers of His Majesty's Fleet, and no person shall be nominated thereto unless his services shall have been marked by the especial mention of bis name in despatches by the Admiral, or senior naval or military officer commanding the squadron, or detached force

The cross is of silver, patee convexed, having on the obverse, in the centre the royal cypher ERI, surrounded by a raised ring, and surmounted by the Imperial Crown, and a ring for suspension. The reverse is plain Ribbon, blue, with a white stripe down the centre. like that for the Conspicuous Gallantry medal.

NORTH AMERICAN INDIAN MEDALS—The medal Page 227 given by Queen Victoria in 1840, is sometimes found with the Prince of Wales' plumes and the date 1860 engraved on the field of the obverse, to the right and left respectively of the Queen's head.

This signifies that the medal was given by the Prince of Wales, during his visit to Canada, in 1860.

A 3½ Guinea Work for 7/6 down.

Che "Encyclopædia of Practical Cookery"

Is undoubtedly at ence the most exhaustive, the most accurate, the most practical, and the most novel book of the kind in the Linguage, and the Editor of the World in his review any "this claim would seem to be incontentable."

Illustrations alone this work is far ahead of all others There are a large number of Colourer Pletes, which for their artistic design and beauty of printing have never been equalled in any book devoted to Cookery, and in addition there are american Menochrome Plates and pawards of 2000 spinedid Engravitys in the text itself.

Incredible pains and very large rums of money have been expended upon the work is make it in every way worshy of the position for which it is desired, and we believe that in the result we have produced a boot that is unvaluable atike to the accomplished Chef, the Lady of the House, or the intelligent Plain Cook.

This Magnificent Work is published in 4 Querta Vals., Handsomely Bound in Hall Persian, Bevelled Boards, and Marble Edges, and would form a splendid addition to any Library.

A SPECIAL OFFER is now made to send the entire work to any responsible person, complete and carriage paid, and a permise to pay the bilance in equal mentally instalayance of 16. The foremently command can be most committee and the most constant at once, while future payments are so small and so far apart that they would not be briefenouse to approar.

Publisher's Officer contains the had on application, and the Book itself seen at the Publisher's Officer.
